FOUR POWERS GIVE VIEWS LIMITING WARSHIPS

GREAT BRITAIN,
FRANCE, ITALY,
JAPAN ACTIVE

OUTLINE LIMITATIONS CLASS BY CLASS, OR GENERAL LIMIT ON TOTAL STRENGTH

UNITED STATES DECLINES TO STATE ITS POSITION PEND-ING FURTHER STUDY
By RAYMOND CLAPPER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

London, Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—The five power naval conference got down to work today when four of the five nations presented their views on how to limit warships.

The presentations were made at a meeting of the delegates sitting as a committee in St. James palace. Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan outlined their position on limiting ships class by class, or putting a general limit on total naval strength.

The United States declined to state its position pending further study of the naval needs advanced by the other four powers.

What progress was made therefore could not be gauged but it was assumed the French compromise plan whereby limitation would be a combination of both suggested methods would still be adopted.

The Japanese delegates, it was learned authoritatively, informed the committee they opposed including any warship more powerful than six-inch gun cruisers in the classes of ships which could be transferred.

The committee's session was brief, adjourning after about an hour.

Albert V. Alexander, first lord of the British admiralty, and Premier Andre Tardieu of France reviewed the positions of their countries.

Admiral Giuseppe Sirianni reiterated Italy's global tonnage thesis while Waatsuki said Japan favors a limited shifting of tonnage from one class to another, similar to the French compromise proposal.

Rene Masigli said France would circulate a memorandum outlining more definite views of her needs. Navy Secretary Charles F. Adams said the Americans would study the entire situation before taking a stand.

At the close of the meeting, Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald said there were several propositions to study and the committee would reconvene next year.

London, Jan. 31.—Leaders of the five-power conference spent today trying to find a compromise between the extreme Anglo-American and French theories of naval limitation.

The original French proposal was that any nation, allotted a certain tonnage, should be allowed to split this tonnage among whatever type of warships it considered most useful.

The British and Americans held that such a system would not be limitation at all.

The suggested compromise which is now receiving attention from the delegates, is that after assignment of definite strength to each nation, the nation shall have the right to shift a certain percentage of this strength from one class of ships to another.

It is the question of how great a percentage of this strength may be transferred between classifications of warships, that provided the biggest problem of the day.

Under the French proposal, it was understood today, the general types of warships would be divided into six groups, as follows:

1. Battleships, 10,000 tons or over, and carrying guns of 8 inches and larger.
2. Cruisers carrying six-inch guns and larger.
3. Auxiliary warships, including destroyers, with guns smaller than six inches.
4. Aircraft carriers.
5. Submarines.
6. Mine sweepers and various small craft.

The importance of the sub-committee which was to deal with the tonnage problem and report back to the main conference was minimized with the announcement of a British spokesman that the committee will not meet, for the present, and that there is nothing for it to do.

It was explained there had been a sudden change in the plans, and the work assigned the sub-committee would be handled by the original committee of the whole, which is composed of all the delegates.

A spokesman for the French delegation indicated that difficulties already have arisen in the private negotiations relative to distribution of tonnage, similar to those which broke up the three-power conference at Geneva in 1927.

The French declare that a definition of the class in which cruisers armed with 6-inch guns and those armed with 8-inch weapons should fall, provides one of the most difficult of the technical problems to be solved.

HELEN TWELVETREES SUES FOR DIVORCE

Los Angeles, Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—Helen Twelvetrees, stage and screen actress, has on file today a suit for divorce charging cruelty against Clark Twelvetrees whom she married in New York in February, 1927.

NEEDLES AND THREAD TO FRONT IF GOTHAM DRESSMAKERS STRIKE

New York, Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—The needles and thread in the home sewing basket, long idle, may become the most popular of domestic accoutrements by spring unless New York's ready-to-wear dress manufacturers meet the demands of 35,000 dressmakers.

The dressmakers, who supply the greater part of the nation's style-conscious women with fashion's latest, have decided to go on strike next week if the manufacturers refuse to raise their pay and provide better working conditions.

The decision to strike, reached in a referendum conducted Wednesday, comes when the ready-to-wear dress industry is preparing to meet spring style demands.

PROHIBITION ISSUES COMING TO HEAD SOON

BREAKING FORTH IN LEGISLATIVE, POLITICAL, ADMINISTRATIVE MOVES

SUBJECT THREATENS TO RE-MAIN VERY DEFINITELY IN FOREGROUND

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Jan. 31.—Prohibition issues of every sort were coming to a head in congress today, to break forth in legislative, political and administrative moves within the next few days which will keep the subject very much to the forefront.

Chairman Williamson of the house expenditures committee, was preparing a report on the first measure of President Hoover's program—the bill for transfer of enforcement agencies from the treasury to the justice department—in which he will set forth the general arguments to be used when the bill is brought before the house.

Williamson expects to present to the house tomorrow the report this measure, which his committee approved yesterday. Chairman Snell of the rules committee, which determines the precedence of legislation, has promised to bring it up the last of next week.

Rep. Cochran, democrat, Missouri, a wet, will submit a minority report, singling out particularly the amendment adopted by the committee, 10 to 4, which gives the attorney general virtual veto power over alcohol permits, though leaving the alcohol permit section under the treasury.

House members will listen today to an hour's prohibition speech by Rep. Franklin Fort, republican, New Jersey, regarded as one of President Hoover's spokesmen in the house.

The senate's attention, meanwhile, was centered upon charges against enforcement personnel and new charges by Senator Brookhart, republican, Iowa, about drinking among rich New York clubmen.

Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, the leading spokesman for senate dries, is awaiting for an answer from Prohibition Commissioner Doran to his letter demanding Doran either remove from office or exonerate John F. C. Herbert, prohibition administrator for Idaho and Montana.

The charges were made by Doran and Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana. The senate continued work upon the tariff bill, while the house was considering a bill to tax butter substitutes which enter the country, principally from the Philippines, to compete with the American dairy industry.

Washington, Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—A 12-inch blanket of snow covered the ground and a stinging wind was blowing with frigid intensity when Andrew Madden-awoke to find his wife claiming $50.

Madden, it seems, had bet his wife that amount he would go to the corner bakery in his underwear for a pint of milk, ignoring her claims Madden, a man of action rather than words, jumped from bed, donned his underwear and set out.

He completed the trip in record time, unmindful of the astonishment of neighbors, returning, barefooted and cold to claim his reward.

WISCONSIN GOVERNOR
DISMISSES SHERIFF

Madison, Wis., Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—Gov. Walter J. Kohler announced today that Sheriff Fredric W. Gleason of Outagamie county had been dismissed on charges of selling protection to bootleggers and slot machine operators. John Lappen, Appleton, has been appointed sheriff.

Bromley to Make Third Attempt to Span the Pacific in a Lockheed Sirius Monoplane

PLANE SIMILAR TO ONE MADE FOR LINDBERGH

INSTEAD OF A DOUBLE COCKPIT
IT WILL HAVE EXTRA
FUEL TANKS

GASOLINE CAPACITY FOR PROPOSED 4860-MILE FLIGHT WILL BE 750 GALLONS

Glendale, Cal., Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—Lieut. Harold Bromley will make his third attempt to span the Pacific in a Lockheed Sirius monoplane similar to that made here recently for Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, it was learned when the Glendale plant received his order.

The plane will be almost identical to that built for the famous colonel and his wife, except that instead of a double cockpit it will have extra fuel tanks. Gasoline capacity for the proposed 4860-mile flight will be 750 gallons.

Lieut. Bromley, who asked for completion of the plane in 60 days, will again try the Pacific flight. His plane ground-looped early last summer when he attempted to take off from Tacoma, Wash., for Tokio.

'UNCOMMUNICATIVE ATTITUDE' OBSERVED

TELEPHONE CO. FAVORS THAT POSITION TAKEN BY RAIL
WAREHOUSE BODY

Minneapolis, Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—The Minnesota Telephone Association today was on record as in favor of an "uncommunicative attitude" by the state railroad and warehouse commission in its investigation of telephone rates.

A resolution requesting the commission that no publicity be given such investigations was adopted at the annual convention of the association here. Membership of the association consists of 221 Minnesota telephone companies, including the Tri-State and Northwestern Bell.

J. C. Crowley, secretary, said the resolution was adopted because of the recent publication of parts of a report covering investigation of the Tri-State and Northwestern Bell.

"In the Tri-State investigation," Crowley said, "members of the commission openly discussed the report. The discussions were made public, but the telephone company was given no opportunity to give its side of the case."

Copies of the resolution were to be sent to each member of the association today.

GLIDER SLIPS FROM DIRIGIBLE IN A TEST FLIGHT AT LAKEHURST

Lakehurst, N. J., Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—A glider piloted by Lieutenant Ralph S. Barnaby slipped away from the navy dirigible Los Angeles today at an altitude of 3,000 feet and made a successful flight over the naval air station here.

Barnaby is the only licensed glider pilot in the navy.

LAWRENCE MABRY, AN OZARK BOY, EXECUTED TODAY

HAD KILLED WM. BUSCH, YOUNG LAW STUDENT, AT SEDALIA, MO.

OTHER EXECUTIONS AT ST.
LOUIS, MO., AND OS-SINING, N. Y.

Boonville, Mo., Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—Lawrence Mabry, an Ozark boy of 19 years, was dropped from improvised gallows through a trap door in a barn loft here today as he murmured a newly learned prayer and attempted a last smile.

He fell to his death at 9:17 A. M. It was the last event in a series which began Feb. 4, 1928, at Sedalia, Mo., when Harry Mabry killed William Busch, young law student, during an attempted holdup.

In the intervening time he was condemned and repeated efforts to win him clemency had failed.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 31.—William Mosley, negro slayer of three persons, was hanged in the city jail here at 8 A. M. today. His only complaint in the long hours before death was that he had no friends.

"Nobody's been to see me since I've been here. I ain't got no friends," he told Rev. John Devilbiss, Catholic priest who was with him the last hours.

The negro was sentenced to death for killing his common law wife, Mildred White.

Ossining, N. Y., Jan. 31.—Michael Scialoni of Brooklyn, a condemned murderer, walked quietly into the death chamber at Sing Sing prison late last night.

He picked up a towel and dusted off the electric chair.

"They can at least give a man about to die a clean chair," he said. Then he sat down and the current was turned on.

PNEUMONIA SAVES FROZEN LEG OF GIRL

Mineral Point, Wis., Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—Marion Batchelor, 16, today had a case of pneumonia to thank for the fact that she probably will go through life with two legs instead of one.

Miss Batchelor's legs were frozen when she was forced to walk three miles with the temperature at about 30 below zero. Physicians decided that amputation was necessary, but that pneumonia developed and it was impossible to operate.

Today the physicians had about concluded that the girl will recover from both ailments.

VICTIMS OF TUBERCULOSIS ARE DECREASING

ANNUAL REPORT ISSUED BY THE
STATE BOARD OF HEALTH

FEWER CASES OF SCARLET FEVER AND DIPHTHERIA ALSO REPORTED IN 1929

St. Paul, Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—The number of victims of tuberculosis and several other communicable diseases is decreasing steadily in Minnesota, according to the annual report issued today by the state board of health.

The report said fewer cases of scarlet fever and diphtheria were reported in 1929 than for several years, but increases were listed in measles and whooping cough.

Contained in the report, the following tabulation compares the cases of communicable diseases in 1929 with 1928 and the five-year average:

| | 1929 | 1928 | aver. |
|----------------|--------|-------|-------|
| Tuberculosis | 2,725 | 3,508 | 3,934 |
| Scarlet fever | 4,885 | 6,241 | 9,293 |
| Diphtheria | 1,120 | 2,401 | 2,759 |
| Measles | 12,656 | 2,117 | 5,463 |
| Whooping cough | 3,399 | 2,239 | 1,695 |

The report said 13 carriers of typhoid were discovered, including one woman to whom 21 cases of the disease were traced.

MORE FAMILIES EVACUATE HOMES

8-MILE ICE GORGE THREATENS TO BREAK ALONG THE
WABASH RIVER

Mt. Vernon, Ind., Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—Additional families living along the Wabash river in southern Indiana and Illinois evacuated their homes today as an eight-mile ice gorge threatened to break and release a wall of water.

Some farmers who would be in the path of the flood should the ice jam break moved to higher territory, as airmen continued to drop food and fuel to marooned folk. Relief workers had 266 bags of food ready for distribution by airplane and truck.

An aerial survey of some of the districts in the flooded area revealed that land relief was now possible and a truck load of supplies was brought to Decker township residents. Red Cross officials reported conditions are vastly improved.

ELKHORN, WIS., IS JUST ROLLING WITH REAL CASH

Elkhorn, Wis., Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—Elkhorn has so much money it does not know what to do with it. Citizens will discuss ways of spending the surplus at a mass meeting next Tuesday evening.

A former resident bequeathed the city $36,000 for a library and a New Yorker offered $60,000 for the same purpose. Besides, the city has $70,000 in its coffers for a municipal building.

BLACK, GREEN AND WHITE, NAMES OF LIQUOR OFFENDERS

Los Angeles, Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—Three men charged with liquor transportation were in jail here today looking rather blue.

United States Commissioner David Head lined the trio in front of his desk after their arrest and asked the first his name.

"Black, Edmond Black," was the reply.

"And yours?" said the commissioner to the second.

"Edison Green."

"I suppose yours is—" began Head, to the third.

"Yes, White, Jarry T. White," was the answer.

Federal agents said the men had given their real names.

CLARIFICATION OF DRY ACT IS SUGGESTED

REP. FORT, NEW JERSEY, MAKES
SPEECH IN HOUSE ON VOL-
STEAD MEASURE

WISHES TO PERMIT HOME MANU-FACTURE OF LIGHT WINES AND BEER

Washington, Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—Clarification of the Volstead act to permit home manufacture of light wines and beer was suggested in a speech in the house today by Rep. Franklin Fort, republican, New Jersey, who is regarded as President Hoover's spokesman in the house.

Much significance was attached to Fort's suggestion because of his close association with Mr. Hoover, in whose campaign he was one of the leaders. The New Jersey member urged retention of the 18th amendment and education for temperance.

Fort said that in his opinion the manufacture of light wines and beer in the home does not seem to be included in the one-half of one per cent alcoholic ban of the Volstead act, but that they come within the ban "non-intoxicating in fact," and thus a higher alcoholic content seems to be permitted.

His speech was listened to with keen interest by house members, some of whom regarded it as a "trial balloon" for reaction of the country.

Referring to the Volstead act, he said:

"Perhaps the act needs clarification on the question of home brew — although nobody has ever been convicted for making it for home use. But, otherwise, it seems to me pretty clearly to fulfill the purposes of its adoption and to satisfy the real wishes of the American people—for the preservation of the industrial system, their prosperity and their homes."

"To those who want abstinence to follow prohibition, may I suggest that they leave enforcement to the officers of the law and return to their educational work."

"To those who want beer and light wines, I suggest they forego the wish to buy and be content with what they make but, above and beyond all, that they be good sports. They have made their fight and lost—lost to a combination of two mighty tendencies of the age—the economical and ethical reorganization of the American people."

That section of the Volstead act, providing no penalties shall be inflicted for manufacture of non-intoxicating beverages in the home for personal use, Fort said, appears to permit manufacture of light wines and beer containing more than one-half of one per cent alcohol.

"This provision," he said, "seems to me rather clearly to lift cider and light wines home-made for home use out of the one-half of one per cent definition and, as to them, to apply the text of intoxication in fact. And, of course, if they can be lawfully made, they can be lawfully possessed in the home of the maker and used by him, his family and his guests."

"Whether this language can be stretched to cover home brew non-intoxicating in fact is another question but clearly the making, the possession and the use of home-made non-intoxicating light wines and ciders is not prohibited by the act."

Under Fort's definition of the Volstead act it would be possible for home owners to make their own home brew and a jury would have to judge it actually intoxicating in fact before he could be punished under the Volstead act. Inasmuch as the standard of what is intoxicating in fact is a variable one, subject to individual judgment, convictions would be difficult under this interpretation of the law.

Answering the charge that prohibition has created a new class of criminals, Fort said many persons consuming liquor in their own homes have the impression they are law breakers when they are not so in fact. He pointed out the Volstead act permits manufacture, possession and use in the home of mild liquors.

AGRICULTURAL DISTRESS DUE TO NO ONE FACTOR

DURING THE WAR, PRODUCTION INCREASED OUTSIDE OF EUROPE

EUROPE AFTER WAR RESTORED
FARMING, OTHER COUNTRIES
DID NOT REDUCE

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—Farmers the world around are beset by the same problem — overexpansion and overproduction. Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde declared here today.

It is impossible to ascribe agricultural distress to any one factor, but there is no question the most important is that of overexpansion, Hyde told a meeting of the Illinois Agricultural Association.

"The reason is plain," he said. "During the war, production increased outside Europe to compensate for reduced production in Europe. When Europe largely restored its agriculture, the other countries did not correspondingly decrease theirs."

"As a result, the world's output ran ahead of market requirements," he continued. "Prices inevitably fell."

Instead of cutting production and reducing cultivated acreage, agricultural nations everywhere entered upon an era of farm development, he said. "In consequence, American farmers and stock growers now find not only their foreign outlets, but their home markets, almost overwhelmed by an influx of outside production."

"The total area under cultivated crops in Canada, Argentina and Australia has increased 200 per cent since 1900. Their combined wheat acreage is now greater than that of the United States, though in 1900 it was only one-third as much."

After citing this example of the way other countries have speeded up production, the secretary presented to the association a long list of similar instances.

Dairy products from the southern hemisphere are being exported in greatly increased quantities, he went on, while Europe has a present production of milk, cheese, butter and pork exceeding its pre-war level.

NO WORD FROM SOVIET PLANES IN EIELSON SEARCH

Moscow, Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—The Soviet airplanes from Providence Bay, piloted by the aviators Sleepnoff and Galishev, should have reached the scene of Capt. Carl Ben Eielson's smashup in northern Siberia today, but no word has been received from them.

Meanwhile, parties of natives organized under the direction of Captain Milozorov, of Stkavropol, will continue search for the bodies of the missing Americans.

Until the mystery of Eielson's death is solved, the Arctic commission declared, the Soviet expeditions will continue their investigations.

EDWARD MADSON GETS LIFE TERM AT STILLWATER PRISON

Minneapolis, Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—Edward Madson was sentenced to life imprisonment in the Stillwater penitentiary today by Judge Gunnar H. Nordbye in Hennepin county district court.

Madson was convicted yesterday for killing Charles Getchell, world war veteran. Phil Devlin, who was indicted with Madson on the charge of slaying Getchell, will be tried next week.

MOB OF UNEMPLOYED STAGE A FOOD RIOT

Berlin, Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—A mob of unemployed started a food riot in Lichtenberg, a suburb of Berlin, today, plundering a store and beating a group of shop girls.

CROSSON, YOUNG, FLIERS OF NORTH, FED UP ON ARCTIC

Juneau, Alaska, Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—Joe Crosson and Capt. Jack Young, searchers for the bodies of Carl Ben Eielson and Frank Bolland at the scene of the wreck of Eielson's plane, are "fed up" on the Arctic and are returning southward when they finish their present task, it was reported here today.

Of Eielson, lost Nov. 9 when his rescue plane was wrecked as he flew to the aid of the fur ship Naumuk, no word came today. It was assumed that Crosson and his helpers still continued their search around the scene of the wreck.

Oil King Presents Dimes to Pilot

HAD KILLED WM. BUSCH, YOUNG LAW STUDENT, AT SEDALIA, MO.

OTHER EXECUTIONS AT ST. LOUIS, MO., AND OSSINING, N. Y.

Boonville, Mo., Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—Lawrence Mabry, an Ozark boy of 19 years, was dropped from improvised gallows through a trap door in a barn left here today as he murmured a newly learned prayer and attempted a last smile.

He fell to his death at 9:17 A. M. It was the last event in a series which began Feb. 4, 1928, at Sedalia, Mo., when Harry Mabry killed William Busch, young law student, during an attempted holdup.

In the intervening time he was condemned and repeated efforts to win him clemency had failed.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 31.—William Mosley, negro slayer of three persons, was hanged in the city jail here at 6 A. M. today. His only complaint in the long hours before death was that he had no friends.

"Nobody's been to see me since I've been here. I ain't got no friends," he told Rev. John Devillbiss, Catholic priest who was with him the last hours.

The negro was sentenced to death for killing his common law wife, Mildred White.

Ossining, N. Y., Jan. 31.—Michael Scalfoni of Brooklyn, a condemned murderer, walked quietly into the death chamber at Sing Sing prison late last night.

He picked up a towel and dusted off the electric chair.

"They can at least give a man about to die a clean chair," he said. Then he sat down and the current was turned on.

PNEUMONIA SAVES FROZEN LEG OF GIRL

Mineral Point, Wis., Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—Marion Batchelor, 16, today had a case of pneumonia to thank for the fact that she probably will go through life with two legs instead of one.

Miss Batchelor's legs were frozen when she was forced to walk three miles with the temperature at about 30 below zero. Physicians decided that amputation was necessary, but pneumonia developed and it was impossible to operate.

Today the physicians had about concluded that the girl will recover from both ailments.

VICTIMS OF TUBERCULOSIS ARE DECREASING

ANNUAL REPORT ISSUED BY THE STATE BOARD OF HEALTH

FEWER CASES OF SCARLET FEVER AND DIPHTHERIA ALSO REPORTED IN 1929

St. Paul, Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—The number of victims of tuberculosis and several other communicable diseases is decreasing steadily in Minnesota, according to the annual report issued today by the state board of health.

The report said fewer cases of scarlet fever and diphtheria were reported in 1929 than for several years, but increases were listed in measles and whooping cough.

Contained in the report, the following tabulation compares the cases of communicable diseases in 1929 with 1928 and the five-year average:

| | 1929 | 1928 | aver. |
|----------------|--------|-------|-------|
| Tuberculosis | 2,725 | 3,508 | 3,934 |
| Scarlet fever | 4,885 | 6,241 | 9,293 |
| Diphtheria | 1,120 | 2,401 | 2,759 |
| Measles | 12,656 | 2,117 | 5,463 |
| Whooping cough | 3,399 | 2,239 | 1,695 |

The report said 13 carriers of typhoid were discovered, including one woman to whom 21 cases of the disease were traced.

MORE FAMILIES EVACUATE HOMES

8-MILE ICE GORGE THREATENS TO BREAK ALONG THE WABASH RIVER

Mt. Vernon, Ind., Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—Additional families living along the Wabash river in southern Indiana and Illinois evacuated their homes today as an eight-mile ice gorge threatened to break and release a wall of water.

Some farmers who would be in the path of the flood should the ice jam break moved to higher territory, as airmen continued to drop food and fuel to marooned folk. Relief workers had 266 bags of food ready for distribution by airplane and truck.

An aerial survey of some of the districts in the flooded area revealed that land relief was now possible and a truck load of supplies was brought to Decker township residents. Red Cross officials reported conditions were vastly improved.

ELKHORN, WIS., IS JUST ROLLING WITH REAL CASH

Elkhorn, Wis., Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—Elkhorn has so much money it does not know what to do with it? Citizens will discuss ways of spending the surplus at a mass meeting next Tuesday evening.

A former resident bequeathed the city $36,000 for a library and a New Yorker offered $60,000 for the same purpose. Besides, the city has $70,000 in its coffers for a municipal building.

BLACK, GREEN AND WHITE, NAMES OF LIQUOR OFFENDERS

Los Angeles, Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—Three men charged with liquor transportation were in jail here today looking rather blue.

United States Commissioner David Head lined the trio in front of his desk after their arrest and asked the first his name.

"Black, Edmond Black," was the reply.

"And yours?" said the commissioner to the second.

"Edison Green."

"I suppose yours is—" began Head, to the third.

"Yes, White, Jarry T. White," was the answer.

Federal agents said the men had given their real names.

CLARIFICATION OF DRY ACT IS SUGGESTED

REP. FORT, NEW JERSEY, MAKES SPEECH IN HOUSE ON VOLSTEAD MEASURE

WISHERS TO PERMIT HOME MANUFACTURE OF LIGHT WINES AND BEER

Washington, Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—Clarification of the Volstead act to permit home manufacture of light wines and beer was suggested in a speech in the house today by Rep. Franklin Fort, republican, New Jersey, who is regarded as President Hoover's spokesman in the house.

Much significance was attached to Fort's suggestion because of his close association with Mr. Hoover, in whose campaign he was one of the leaders. The New Jersey member urged retention of the 18th amendment and education for temperance.

Fort said that in his opinion the manufacture of light wines and beer in the home does not seem to be included in the one-half of one per cent alcoholic ban of the Volstead act, but that they come within the ban "non-intoxicating in fact," and thus a higher alcoholic content seems to be permitted.

His speech was listened to with keen interest by house members, some of whom regarded it as a "trial balloon" for reaction of the country.

Referring to the Volstead act, he said:

"Perhaps the act needs clarification on the question of home brew — although nobody has ever been convicted for making it for home use. But, otherwise, it seems to me pretty clearly to fulfill the purposes of its adoption and to satisfy the real wishes of the American people—for the preservation of the industrial system, their prosperity and their homes.

"To those who want abstinence to follow prohibition, may I suggest that they leave enforcement to the officers of the law and return to their educational work.

"To those who want beer and light wines, I suggest they forego the wish to buy and be content with what they make but, above and beyond all, that they be good sports. They have made their fight and lost—lost to a combination of two mighty tendencies of the age—the economical and ethical reorganization of the American people."

The section of the Volstead act, providing no penalties shall be inflicted for manufacture of non-intoxicating beverages in the home for personal use, Fort said, appears to permit manufacture of light wines and beer containing more than one-half of one per cent alcohol.

"This provision," he said, "seems to me rather clearly to lift cider and light wines home-made for home use out of the one-half of one per cent definition and, as to them, to apply the text of intoxication in fact. And, of course, if they can be lawfully made, they can be lawfully possessed in the home of the maker and used by him, his family and his guests.

"Whether this language can be stretched to cover home brew non-intoxicating in fact is another question but clearly the making, the possession and the use of home-made non-intoxicating light wines and ciders is not prohibited by the act."

Under Fort's definition of the Volstead act it would be possible for home owners to make their own home brew and a jury would have to judge if actually intoxicating in fact before he could be punished under the Volstead act. Inasmuch as the standard of what is intoxicating in fact is a variable one, subject to individual judgment, convictions would be difficult under this interpretation of the law. Answering the charge that prohibition has created a new class of criminals, Fort said many persons consuming liquor in their own homes have the impression they are law breakers when they are not so in fact. He pointed out the Volstead act permits manufacture, possession and use in the home of mild liquors.

AGRICULTURAL DISTRESS DUE TO NO ONE FACTOR

DURING THE WAR, PRODUCTION INCREASED OUTSIDE OF EUROPE

EUROPE AFTER WAR RESTORED FARMING, OTHER COUNTRIES DID NOT REDUCE

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—Farmers the world around are beset by the same problem—overexpansion and overproduction. Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde declared here today.

It is impossible to ascribe agricultural distress to any one factor, but there is no question the most important is that of overexpansion, Hyde told a meeting of the Illinois Agricultural Association.

"The reason is plain," he said. "During the war, production increased outside Europe to compensate for reduced production in Europe. When Europe largely restored its agriculture, the other countries did not correspondingly decrease theirs.

"As a result, the world's output ran ahead of market requirements," he continued. "Prices inevitably fell."

Instead of cutting production and reducing cultivated acreage, agricultural nations everywhere entered upon an era of farm development, he said.

"In consequence, American farmers and stock growers now find not only their foreign outlets, but their home markets, almost overwhelmed by an influx of outside production.

"The total area under cultivated crops in Canada, Argentina and Australia has increased 200 per cent since 1900. Their combined wheat acreage is now greater than that of the United States, though in 1900 it was only one-third as much."

After citing this example of the way other countries have speeded up production, the secretary presented to the association a long list of similar instances.

Dairy products from the southern hemisphere are being exported in greatly increased quantities, he went on, while Europe has a present production of milk, cheese, butter and pork exceeding its pre-war level.

NO WORD FROM SOVIET PLANES IN EIELSON SEARCH

Moscow, Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—The Soviet airplanes from Providence Bay, piloted by the aviators Sleepnoff and Galishev should have reached the scene of Capt. Carl Ben Eielson's smashup in northern Siberia today, but no word has been received from them.

Meanwhile, parties of natives organized under the direction of Captain Milozorov, of Stkavropol, will continue search for the bodies of the missing Americans.

Until the mystery of Eielson's death is solved, the Arctic commission declared, the Soviet expeditions will continue their investigations.

EDWARD MADSON GETS LIFE TERM AT STILLWATER PRISON

Minneapolis, Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—Edward Madson was sentenced to life imprisonment in the Stillwater penitentiary today by Judge Gunnar H. Nordbye in Hennepin county district court.

Madson was convicted yesterday for killing Charles Getchell, world war veteran. Phil Devlin, who was indicted with Madson on the charge of slaying Getchell, will be tried next week.

MOB OF UNEMPLOYED STAGE A FOOD RIOT

Berlin, Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—A mob of unemployed started a food riot in Lichtenberg, a suburb of Berlin, today, plundering a store and beating a group of shop girls.

CROSSON, YOUNG, FLIERS OF NORTH, FED UP ON ARCTIC

Juneau, Alaska, Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—Joe Crosson and Capt. Jack Young, searchers for the bodies of Carl Ben Eielson and Frank Borland at the scene of the wreck of Eielson's plane, are "fed up" on the Arctic and are returning southward when they finish their present task, it was reported here today.

Of Eielson, lost Nov. 9 when his rescue plane was wrecked as he flew to the aid of the fur ship Nanuk, no word came today. It was assumed that Crosson and his helpers still continued their search around the scene of the wreck.

BRAINERD 25 YEARS AGO

From the Daily Dispatch

January 31, 1905

Mrs. J. M. Elder and son Monroe returned yesterday from New York where they have been visiting for several weeks.

The city of Brainerd was visited by another fire last night which destroyed the old frame Wise building on the corner of Front and Sixth streets and the two small frame store buildings to the south, occupied by R. F. Walters, shoe dealer, and C. L. Burnett, jeweler. The estimated total loss is about $200,000. The fire was discovered by H. J. Linnemann and J. C. Davis who saw smoke issuing from the building, and it being an early hour of the evening, a crowd soon gathered. The bitter cold of the night greatly hampered the firemen and they suffered intensely. By the burning of this corner building, a veritable landmark in Brainerd has been removed. The building was constructed in the spring of 1872 and was known for years as the Bly block, a rather pretentious structure for Brainerd in those days.

Secretary Flicker announces that he has received a new shuffle board for the game room of the association building in this city. This is a very popular game in all the association buildings of the Twin Cities and Duluth. All men in the city are invited to call and inspect the board.

The library board states that the city library and reading room will be open Tuesday and Thursday evenings and Saturday afternoon and evening.

Jay S. Patek has taken a position with "The Mutual Life." He will be in Brainerd a day or two of each week, so still regards Brainerd as his home.

The business men who were to get together last evening in Arcadia hall to organize a commercial club did not make any headway as all plans were disrupted by the fire which started just as the gentlemen were about to convene. A meeting is called for Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

Explaining Frequent Stops

Not long ago a Rochester (N. H.) woman was enjoying a ride on top of one of the Fifth avenue busses in New York city. It seemed to her that the bus was making rather frequent stops, but she was in no hurry and gave the matter not much thought until at one the conductor came up the stairs to where she sat. "Pardon me, madam," said he politely, "but would you mind taking your knee off the bell?"

BRAINERD 25 YEARS AGO

From the Daily Dispatch

January 31, 1905

Mrs. J. M. Elder and son Monroe returned yesterday from New York where they have been visiting for several weeks.

The city of Brainerd was visited by another fire last night which destroyed the old frame Wise building on the corner of Front and Sixth streets and the two small frame store buildings to the south, occupied by R. F. Walters, shoe dealer, and C. L. Burnett, jeweler. The estimated total loss is about $200,000. The fire was discovered by H. J. Linnemann and J. C. Davis who saw smoke issuing from the building, and it being an early hour of the evening, a crowd soon gathered. The bitter cold of the night greatly hampered the firemen and they suffered intensely. By the burning of this corner building, a veritable landmark in Brainerd has been removed. The building was constructed in the spring of 1872 and was known for years as the Bly block, a rather pretentious structure for Brainerd in those days.

Secretary Flickwer announces that he has received a new shuffle board for the game room of the association building in this city. This is a very popular game in all the association buildings of the Twin Cities and Duluth. All men in the city are invited to call and inspect the board.

The library and reading room will be open Tuesday and Thursday evenings and Saturday afternoon and evening.

Jay S. Patek has taken a position with "The Mutual Life." He will be in Brainerd a day or two of each week, so still regards Brainerd as his home.

The business men who were to get together last evening in Arcadia hall to organize a commercial club did not make any headway as all plans were disrupted by the fire which started just as the gentlemen were about to convene. A meeting is called for Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

500 PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Roman Thienes, Mr. and Mrs. John Weber Entertain

Mr. and Mrs. Roman Thienes and Mr. and Mrs. John Weber entertained at a 500 party at the home of the former, 1202 Oak street, last evening.

The first prize for ladies was taken by Mrs. Frank Thienes; with Mrs. Iver Hagen and Mrs. Byron Anderson cutting for the second high prize with Mrs. Anderson winning. J. Fredericks and T. Nesheim tied for the men's high, with Mr. Fredericks winning, and J. Opheim captured the second high.

Consolation prizes for the ladies were awarded to Mrs. Fredericks and Mrs. R. C. Weber. On the men's consolation Iver Hagen and J. Eggerling tied, with Mr. Hagen winning the cut. Frank Thienes was awarded the men's second consolation.

Five tables of 500 were played. At midnight a luncheon was served.

FAREWELL PARTY

Mrs. Ida M. Hagberg Entertains for Mr. and Mrs. V. Christensen

Mrs. Ida M. Hagberg entertained at a farewell party last evening for Mr. and Mrs. V. Christensen, who left today for International Falls, where they will make their future home.

Three tables of bridge were played, with honors for the ladies going to Mrs. C. Van Essen and for the men to "Speck" Hansen. Ladies consolation was awarded Mrs. Christensen.

The guests included the entire lively bowling team and their wives and also several other friends. Mrs. Christensen was presented with a beautiful gift from the members of the bowling team.

A three courses luncheon was served at midnight, after which the guests departed wishing the honor guests much happiness in their new home. Mr. Christensen has for the past three years been manager of the Burg store here. He will take charge of a Burg store at International Falls.

Explaining Frequent Stops

Not long ago a Rochester (N. H.) woman was enjoying a ride on top of one of the Fifth avenue busses in New York city. It seemed to her that the bus was making rather frequent stops, but she was in no hurry and gave the matter not much thought until at one the conductor came up the stairs to where she sat. "Pardon me, madam," said he politely, "but would you mind taking your knee off the bell?"

DIES OF SHOCK FROM ACCIDENT

Charles Mudge, Retired N. P. Machinist, Passed Away Thursday at N. P. B. A. Hospital

FALLS AT HOME JANUARY 25

Suffered Fracture of the Femur, Leaves Son and Daughter, Rites Saturday

Charles Mudge, 76 years old, a retired Northern Pacific machinist, died Thursday at the N. P. B. A. hospital, St. Paul, from shock, the result of injuries on January 24 when he fell at his home in Northeast Brainerd and sustained a fracture of the femur.

Mr. Mudge was born in Courtland, New York, coming to Brainerd in 1877 working in the Northern Pacific shops here until a year and a half ago when he was retired on a pension.

Surviving are one son, Ralph Mudge, one daughter, Mrs. Ralph Russell and a grandson, Charles Henry Mudge, all of Brainerd. His wife passed away 18 years ago.

Funeral rites will be conducted Saturday afternoon at 2:15 o'clock at his home, 424 Second avenue N. E. and at 2:30 o'clock from the Evangelical church, N. E., Rev. T. M. Krauss officiating. The I. O. O. F. lodge of which Mr. Mudge was a member will have charge of the interment at Evergreen cemetery.

Cabbage Not Modern

Early civilization used the cabbage. Egyptians considered it of great importance. Hypocrites ascribed medical properties to it. Cato and Pythagoras mention it in their writings.

KET LOSSES

SHORTAGE IN BANK DISCOVER- ED WITHIN THE PAST FEW DAYS

Faribault, Minn., Jan. 31.—(UP)—The cashier and assistant cashier of the First State Bank of Webster, Minn., have confessed to absconding $30,000 in the past two years to cover losses on the stock market, it was learned here today.

O. A. Docken, cashier, and Alvin F.
Grieger, assistant cashier, were apprehended and brought here last night. They confessed to officials of the state banking department and were returned to Webster under guard today.

Docken remained on duty in the bank, under the guard of a deputy sheriff. Officers and leading depositors of the institution were understood to be attempting to stave off a run and save the bank.

Christening Customs

Etiquette says that in other days of stricter observances a baby was baptized in the Catholic and High Episcopal church on the first or at least second Sunday after its birth.
But today the christening is usually delayed at least until the young mother is up and about again. Often it is put off for months, and in some denominations children need not be christened until they are several years old. The usual age is from two to six months.

When Robin Sings

The term robin redbreast rides the tongue easily and is pleasing for its alliteration. And what a delightful turn to the name John Burroughs gave by calling him "wake robin." Wake robin, indeed, calling nature in the North from her winter slumbers and bidding us be of good cheer, because spring is just around the corner.—Exchange.

HIGH POWERED COLLEGE JOURNALISM IS TONED DOWN

Columbus, O., Jan. 31.—(UP)—The
student senate at Ohio State university today sent a telegram of apology to Minnesota university basketball players who were referred to as "big dumb Swedes" in the current issue of the Lantern, university daily. The
Gophers played here last Saturday.

The senate at the same time censured Lester B. Beiderman, sports editor of the Lantern, for his unportsmanlike article. Beiderman in addition to calling the Minnesota students
"dumb Swedes" styled their basketball play as "scatterbrained." He concluded with the declaration that two sororities could have provided more kick in a basketball game than did the Gophers and the Buckeyes.

Ohio State plays Minnesota at Minneapolis tomorrow night.

HIGH POWERED COLLEGE JOURNALISM IS TONED DOWN

Columbus, O., Jan. 31.—(UP)—The
student senate at Ohio State university today sent a telegram of apology to Minnesota university basketball players who were referred to as "big dumb Swedes" in the current issue of the Lantern, university daily. The
Gophers played here last Saturday.

The senate at the same time censured Lester B. Beiderman, sports editor of the Lantern, for his unsports-manlike article. Beiderman in addition to calling the Minnesota students
"dumb Swedes" styled their basketball
play as "scatterbrained." He concluded with the declaration that two sororities could have provided more kick in a basketball game than did
the Gophers and the Buckeyes.

Ohio State plays Minnesota at Minneapolis tomorrow night.

"Growing in the Middle and Not at the Ends"

GOVERNOR CHRISTIANSON made a wise observation at the high school dedication exercises when he said an individual showed advancement of the years in "growing in the middle and not at the ends."

Some 50 business and professional men of Brainerd have come to a sudden realization of this uncomfortable penchant on the part of nature. It was brought forcibly to the attention of 14 participants in the recent Rotary-Lions basketball game. Many found themselves short of wind after a few minutes of violent exercise. Others nearly broke in two in suddenly stooping to pick up the ball. All found that their eyes and limbs had lost their cunning. Even the younger fry among the Lions found that university and high school honors gained amounted to but a pinch of snuff if the individual had neglected regular exercise.

So now a large group is to exercise regularly with the idea of regaining that slim boyish figure that the ladies admire so much. Stomach lines, bay windows in human architecture, are to be rudely shaken from their foundations.

Every man is to become an athlete, able at least to tie his shoestrings without a grunt or apoplectic flush on his forehead. Getting into good physical trim will please the Lady of the House who will then find it no difficulty to have her athletic husband do a lot of things around the house which previously required the services of a carpenter, mechanic, steamfitter, etc.

It was not just a philosophical remark but real truth when Supt. W. C. Cobb told the dedication assembly that the high school gym had already assumed the hues of a community institution as the fathers and other adults were making use of its manifold advantages. If some of the fathers had little chance to prance around in short basketball pants in their youthful days, they are going to make up for it now. Some have visions of even playing five minutes or more in Lester Peterson's Globe Trotters.

Governor Takes Up Cause of Settlers

GOVERNOR THEODORE CHRISTIANSON has taken up the cause of settlers who suffered losses in the forest fires of nearly 12 years ago. He has asked congress for a federal appropriation to pay 8,000 Minnesota residents in full for losses incurred in the 1918 forest fire.

The governor asked that the federal government pay the losses in full instead of paying for from 30 to 50 per cent of the destruction. The fire, it will be remembered, swept over large parts of four northwestern Minnesota counties. He has explained that the 30 to 50 per cent settlement was reached because the settlers could not wait until the 8,000 cases received court action.

In letters to William R. Wood, chairman of the house appropriations committee, and Senator Reed Smoot, chairman of the senate finance committee, the governor wrote that "these settlers have a strong equitable claim which cannot, I believe, be denied."

At the time these fires occurred the federal government was in control of the railroads. Fires were traced to sparks from the railroad locomotives and the government was judged liable for the losses.

Take Farmers' Short Course

A NEW thing in the education of field men of the rural credits bureau was having them attend the Farmers short course at the University Farm school, with the idea of equipping these men with the information necessary to become farm managers.

The growing of legumes, clover, alfalfa was stressed and the eradication of weeds. The state through its rural credits bureau makes loans on farms, and it is interested, necessarily, in the conduct and management of such farms, occupied by its tenants as well as its borrowers.

The best land in the world may prove a liability and bring no return on the investment, or safely cover a loan, if the farmer in charge is not continually keeping abreast of the advances made in agriculture. To this end the department of rural credits is vitally interested.

Stop Signs

THE Thief River Falls Times complains because the motorists fail to stop at the stop signs recently erected at certain streets there.

Thief River Falls should adopt tactics such as have been adopted in Grand Rapids, says the Itasca County Independent. There—a long time ago, it was—the village authorities decided that the stop signals meant stop, and no mistake. So they instructed their police officers to arrest all who failed to come to an absolute full stop at such intersections as were marked with stop signs. The custom of stopping crystallized into a positive habit. There is no trouble in Grand Rapids about stop signs being "merely a part of the scenery" any more. They mean stop, and are so heeded.

Automobile Lifts Us Out of the Mud

SOME people are of the opinion that the automobile is draining the rural districts, towns and cities of the middle west. They forget, says the Albert Lea Tribune, that it is the auto that has lifted us out of the mud.

It's the auto that gives us the bright-lighted filling station at the corner, the thousands of busy men at the garages, tire shops and accessory stores.

And lastly the automobile has given the people more happiness, enjoyment and get-togethers than all other things put together. This is why we can't agree with those who cry that we are all headed for the rocks.

"STORM-TOSSED"

BY HELEN SCHERMERHORN YOUNG

CHAPTER XXXI.

"O, it's so nice to be with you again," Enid said as she and Pauline sat on Pauline's veranda with Dave. Enid sighed and looked off to the mountains which she loved. The sun was going down behind them.

"And I've something to tell you," she lowered her eyes. "I'm going to have a baby in April." "Oh—Enid—I'm so happy for you," and Pauline's arms were around her in true sympathy, for Pauline had long wished for a child for herself. Enid had suddenly attained a revered importance in her eyes.

"That's great, Enid," said Dave proudly. "I hope you'll have to name him Richard Grant."

Richard Grant—her son—yes, she felt it would be a son and yet not quite sure. A little girl would be sweet—but a son for Dick. "It's too bad Ned had to leave just now," said Pauline. "You're quite brave to have allowed him to go."

"I didn't tell him," explained Enid. "You see it was such a great chance for him and I knew that if I told him he would have tried to give it up. So I came out here to you and Pauline."

"I call that being a good sport," declared Dave, proud of his sister's apparent selfishness.

"And then I wanted that doctor you told me about in San Francisco," added Enid.

"Dr. Gibbons—you couldn't do better. He's splendid—one of the best in the country."

"Will you go to a hospital?" asked Pauline.

"I thought I might take a little apartment," replied Enid.

"Well, there's one thing. You'll stay right here until it's time for it to happen," declared Dave.

"It would be lovely if you would let me," sighed Enid. The peace of it—to be there in her little cabin—where Dick had held her in his arms. It seemed like their home. She had no other now.

"Just think," said Pauline, "next week will be Christmas. I never can get used to it without cold weather and snow."

"It does seem strange," murmured Enid.

"Next year you'll have a Christmas tree for the baby," said Pauline wistfully.

"Yes," Enid smiled.

"Let's all try to get together for Christmas next year," suggested Dave. "This one is all wrong."

"Yes," agreed Pauline, "with Ned gone."

"And mother," whispered Enid. David put his hand on hers and they were quiet, thinking of the happy days of their childhood—the tree and burning candles Christmas night.

Christmas—Ned should have received her letter by now—or at least in a few days. She'd sent it care of the Oil Company as Ned had directed. That was the quickest way. They would forward it to him. It would reach him surely at Panama. He and Dick were to be there for Christmas, after making several stops en route.

But no answer came at Christmas—no word—they must be on the high seas. She would have heard something—why not a radio—that was possible. But then they were so far away and she was so far away—anything might happen.

It came on New Year's Eve: "Arrived Panama. Glorious news. God bless you. Happiest year of our lives. Take care of yourself. All love. Ned."

And one from Dick to Dave: "Happy New Year to all."

"Dick."

Enid knew that message was for her.

They sat in Pauline's cabin that evening and when it came near 11:30 Dave produced a bottle of champagne and there in the mountains—not a sound—no whistles or bells or people screaming—they saw the New Year in.

"Happy New Year, Enid," said Dave, coming over to kiss his sister after he had kissed Pauline.

God—his wife—why couldn't and held his face close to hers for a moment, "and here's to Richard Grant Grier."

Richard Grant Grier—Richard Grant. Enid's eyes filled and she raised her glass to Dave and Pauline with a brave effort at a smile.

Dave walked over to her cabin with her. Once there she sat down in front of the fire by herself. New Year's Eve had always impressed her with a certain feeling of awe—since she was a child she had felt a mystery about it—long years ago, when she was a little girl and heard the din of New York, she had always been just a little frightened.

A new year. Stepping over the threshold of a dark unknown year—where would it lead her—and so alone.

She had always been nervous before sleeping in her cabin alone. She had to be brave and calm.

It was time. She would be calm. She must be brave and gallant—like—like his father.

she have been his wife—why must he bow his head in shame in the midst of his rejoicing—what had he done?

Ned—what would they do? It had been hard enough to be with old Ned and feel his hand on his shoulder before—but now—

The days before sailing were full. Ned and Dick hardly spoke to each other. The minute he had learned through the company that Ned had left Chicago, Dick tried to reach Enid on the telephone—three thousand miles away—but it would be her voice—she must want to say something else to him. He'd tell her over the telephone that he loved her—loved her as he had never loved her before and that whatever she did about telling Ned would be all right—perhaps she would come to him without telling—that would be wrong—and Ned was on his way—

"Plaza 33789 has been disconnected." "Disconnected—that was strange. I had her number been disconnected—where was Enid—what had happened to her?"

"Enid's coming West while I'm gone."

But this New Year. This frightened her. This was real—not like a wood-rat on the roof or deer in the brush.

Where were Dick and Ned—this New Year's Eve? Panama, yes. The cable had indicated that. But what were they doing? Were they thinking of her? If only Ned wouldn't think of her, it would be better. But Dick—

Dick and Ned were at that moment in the Union Club in Panama—champagne, laughter, balloons, the orchestra going wild, everyone screaming, confetti, bells, rattles, streamers of green, red, purple paper ribbons, silly paper hats on everyone. Happy New Year. Happy New Year.

If he could only have reached her on the telephone that day from Chicago—"No, Mrs. Grier was not at home." Later he tried. "Mrs. Grier has not returned yet."

Later Ned would be there... those days on the train—"our baby." That was why she hadn't told Ned. Enid going to have a baby—his baby. Great God! Could this wonderful thing have come to him? Now, she was his. Nothing could ever take her away from him. He raised her on even a higher pedestal and worshipped from far below.

He wished to shriek his joy—display his pride—tell everybody—his Enid was going to give him a child—his Enid—his love—his wife.

God—his wife—why couldn't

He thought. He couldn't ask Dave. Why should he be telephoning Enid in New York from San Francisco. . . . Couldn't do anything. Hampered—restricted—

Where was she? Was she all right? The day of sailing. He'd try again. He was out of his father's house by six o'clock in the morning. Very quietly he crept down the stairs—his mother would think it strange his going out at that hour if he heard him.

Six o'clock—nine o'clock New York. That may have been a mistake—those operators do make mistakes.

He put the call in. The lines would be clear now—this early. He waited. The operator in the hotel—between other calls said cheerfully, "Plaza 33789 is disconnected. Any other number?"

What did it all mean? And there was no way of his finding out.

It was not until a week later lying out on the hot deck of the steamer that Ned had spoken of it. "Enid's coming West while I am gone. She's going to Panama with Dave and Pauline. She was so miserable when I left. It was tough that I had to leave just at this time."

Just at this time—did he know—his hands suddenly started to perspire.

Fashions for the Smart Woman

CHIC CAPE COLLAR

Cape collars are very much to the fore in the newest frocks, and are acclaimed for their flattering, feminine effect. In this model the collar presents an individual cut. It is shirred in front, is developed in a shoulder capelet style, and dips to the waistline in back, with a graceful ripple. The frock itself has a circular skirt, which joins the blouse at the natural waistline, accented by a belt. This model is charming for afternoon in one of the new large prints in soft color combinations. A medium shade of brown with pink is particularly striking alliance. Pattern Printed Pattern No. 5079. Sizes 14 to 42, 45 cents.

Backward Barbados

Barbados is a British island in many respects, but it lacks all the elements of progress usually found under the Union Jack. The island lies in the sweep of the trade winds. Is wonderfully fertile and is easily one of the most healthy islands in the Caribbean because of the equable climate. In Bridgetown, the capital of the island, the houses of the British residents are as English as they are in Liverpool or Manchester, while the public buildings are copied from England. The negroes in this island work harder than in the others and, as they are plentiful, their pay is very low. The grinding of corn and other farm commodities is done by the old prehistoric windmill, while machinery of most kinds is taboo.

Zola on Advertising

"I shall repeat these ideas," wrote Emile Zola, the novelist, "and go on repeating them, because new things must be baptized before the public, so that they may think them new. . . . First, I place a nail, and then with a stroke of the hammer I drive this nail into the brain of the public; then with another stroke I make it go another inch. . . ."

This rather forceful statement of the power of repetition has been quoted by a prominent advertising agency with the comment, "Does this not, in a few words, express the underlying philosophy of all advertising?"

Scholastic Innovation

When Dr. William R. Harper became president of Chicago university in 1891 he arranged for extension courses. He offered courses conducted by regular members of the faculty, who planned the lessons, graded the papers and assigned credit for the work done.

Who in Your Family Coughs From a Cold?

If they have a cough from a cold that hangs on, they are in constant danger. Many a serious illness follows neglected colds. If a cold is permitted to persist, it can lead and often does lead into dangerous complications.

Don't let them trifle with colds. Suggest fresh air, lots of sleep, a simple diet, clean intestines and—Cremolus. Colds are infectious. They endanger all of the family. If there's a cough from a chest cold or bronchial irritation in your family, go and get Cremolus.

Cremolus taken promptly will help you avoid dangerous diseases and the expense and loss of time when sick in bed. We guarantee relief for coughs from colds, or we'll refund your money. adv.

Automobile Lifts Us Out of the Mud

SOME people are of the opinion that the automobile is draining the rural districts, towns and cities of the middle west. They forget, says the Albert Lea Tribune, that it is the auto that has lifted us out of the mud.

It's the auto that gives us the bright-lighted filling station at the corner, the thousands of busy men at the garages, tire shops and accessory stores.

And lastly the automobile has given the people more happiness, enjoyment and get-togethers than all other things put together. This is why we can't agree with those who cry that we are all headed for the rocks.

CHAPTER XXXI.

"Oh, it's so nice to be with you again," Enid said as she and Pauline sat on Pauline's veranda with Dave. Enid sighed and looked off to the mountains which she loved. The sun was going down behind them.

"And I've something to tell you," she lowered her eyes. "I'm going to have a baby in April."

"Oh—Enid—I'm so happy for you," and Pauline's arms were around her in true sympathy, for Pauline had long wished for a child for herself. Enid had suddenly attained a revered importance in her eyes.

"That's great, Enid," said Dave proudly. "I hope you'll have to name him Richard Grant."

Richard Grant—her son—yes, she felt it would be a son and yet not quite sure. A little girl would be sweet—but a son for Dick.

"It's too bad Ned had to leave just now," said Pauline. "You're quite brave to have allowed him to go."

"I didn't tell him," explained Enid. "You see it was such a great chance for him and I knew that if I told him he would have tried to give it up. So I came out here to you and Pauline."

"I call that being a good sport," declared Dave, proud of his sister's apparent unselfishness.

"And then I wanted that doctor you told me about in San Francisco," added Enid.

"Dr. Gibbons—you couldn't do better. He's splendid—one of the best in the country."

"Will you go to a hospital?" asked Pauline.

"I thought I might take a little apartment," replied Enid.

"Well, there's one thing. You'll stay right here until it's time for it to happen," declared Dave.

"It would be lovely if you would let me," sighed Enid. The peace of it—to be there in her little cabin where Dick had held her in his arms. It seemed like their home. She had no other now.

"Just think," said Pauline, "next week will be Christmas. I never can get used to it without cold weather and snow."

"It does seem strange," murmured Enid.

"Next year you'll have a Christmas tree for the baby," said Pauline wistfully.

"Yes," Enid smiled.

"Let's all try to get together for Christmas next year," suggested Dave. "This one is all wrong."

"Yes," agreed Pauline, "with Ned gone."

"And mother," whispered Enid. David put his hand on hers and they were quiet, thinking of the happy days of their childhood—the tree and burning candles Christmas night."

Christmas—Ned should have received her letter by now—or at least in a few days. She'd sent it care of the Oil Company as Ned had directed. That was the quickest way. They would forward it to him. It would reach him surely at Panama. He and Dick were to be there for Christmas, after making several stops en route.

But no answer came at Christmas—no word—they must be on the high seas. She would have heard something—why not a radio—that was possible. But then they were so far away and she was so far away—anything might happen.

It came on New Year's Eve: "Arrived Panama. Glorious news. God bless you. Happiest year of our lives. Take care of yourself. All love, Ned."

And one from Dick to Dave: "Happy New Year to all."

"Dick."

Enid knew that message was for her.

They sat in Pauline's cabin that evening and when it came near 11:30 Dave produced a bottle of champagne and there in the mountains—not a sound—no whistles or bells or people screaming—they saw the New Year in.

"Happy New Year, Enid," said Dave, coming over to kiss his sister after he had kissed Pauline and held his face close to hers for a moment. "And here's to Richard Grant Grier."

Richard Grant Grier—Richard Grant. Enid's eyes filled and she raised her glass to Dave and Pauline with a brave effort at a smile.

Dave walked over to her cabin with her. Once there she sat down in front of the fire by herself. New Year's Eve had always impressed her with a certain feeling of awe—since she was a child she had felt a mystery about it—long years ago, when she was a little girl and heard the din of New York, she had always been just a little frightened.

A new year. Stepping over the threshold of a dark unknown caravansary—where would it lead her—and so alone.

She had always been nervous before sleeping in her cabin alone. But now it was conquered. She had to be brave. She would be brave. She would be brave.

She must be brave and gallant—like his father.

Disconnected—that was strange—why had their number been disconnected—where was Enid—what had happened to her?

He thought. He couldn't ask Dave. Why should he be telephoning Enid in New York from San Francisco. . . . Couldn't do anything. Hampered—restricted—forbidden to communicate with his beloved.

Where was she? Was she all right?

The day of sailing. He'd try again. He was out of his father's house by six o'clock in the morning. Very quietly he crept down the stairs—his mother would think it strange his going out at that hour if she heard him.

Six o'clock—nine o'clock New York. That may have been a mistake—those operators do make mistakes.

He put the call in. The lines would be clear now—this early. He waited. The operator in the hotel—between other calls said cheerfully. "Plaza 33789 is disconnected. Any other number?"

What did it all mean? And there was no way of his finding out.

It was not until a week later lying out on the hot deck of the steamer that Ned had spoken of it.

"Enid's coming West while I am gone. She's going to Serana with Dave and Pauline. She was so miserable when I left. It was so that I had to leave just at this time."

Just at this time—did he know his hands suddenly started to perspire.

But this New Year. This frightened her. This was real—not like a wood-rat on the roof or deer in the brush.

Where were Dick and Ned—this New Year's Eve? Panama, yes. The cable had indicated that. But what were they doing? Were they thinking of her? If only Ned wouldn't think of her, it would be better. But Dick—

Dick and Ned were at that moment in the Union Club in Panama—champagne, laughter, balloons, the orchestra going wild, everyone screaming, confetti, bells, rattles, streamers of green, red, purple paper ribbons, silly paper hats on everyone. Happy New Year. Happy New Year.

If he could only have reached her on the telephone that day from Chicago—"No, Mrs. Grier was not at home." Later he tried. "Mrs. Grier has not returned yet."

Later Ned would be there. . . . those days on the train—"our baby." She had said that, "our baby." That was why she hadn't told Ned. Enid going to have a baby—his baby. Great God! Could this wonderful thing have come to him? Now, she was his. Nothing could ever take her away from him. He raised her on even a higher pedestal and worshipped from far below.

He wished to shriek his joy—display his pride—tell everybody—his Enid was going to give him a child—his Enid—his love—his wife—

God—his wife—why couldn't

Fashions for the Smart Woman

CHIC CAPE COLLAR

Cape collars are very much to the fore in the newest frocks, and are acclaimed for their flattering, feminine effect. In this model the collar presents an individual cut. It is shirred in front, is developed in a shoulder capelet style, and dips to the waistline in back, with a graceful ripple. The frock itself has a circular skirt, which joins the blouse at the natural waistline, accented by a belt. This model is charming for afternoon in one of the new large prints in sort color combinations. A medium shade of brown with pink is particularly striking alliance. Pictorial Printed Pattern No. 5079. Sizes 14 to 42, 45 cents.

Backward Barbados

Barbados is a British island in many respects, but it lacks all the elements of progress usually found under the Union Jack. The island lies in the sweep of the trade winds, is wonderfully fertile and is easily one of the most healthy islands in the Caribbean because of the equable climate. In Bridgetown, the capital of the island, the houses of the British residents are as English as they are in Liverpool or Manchester, while the public buildings are copied from England. The negroes in this island work harder than in the others and, as they are plentiful, their pay is very low. The grinding of corn and other farm commodities is done by the old prehistoric windmill, while machinery of most kinds is taboo.

Zola on Advertising

"I shall repeat these ideas," wrote Emile Zola, the novelist, "and go on repeating them, because new things must be baptized before the public, so that they may think them new. . . . First, I place a nail, and then with a stroke of the hammer I drive this nail into the brain of the public; then with another stroke I make it go another inch. . . ."

This rather forceful statement of the power of repetition has been quoted by a prominent advertising agency with the comment, "Does this not, in a few words, express the underlying philosophy of all advertising?"

Scholastic Innovation

When Dr. William R. Harper became president of Chicago university in 1891 he arranged for extension courses. He offered courses conducted by regular members of the faculty, who planned the lessons, graded the papers and assigned credit for the work done.

Who in Your Family Coughs From a Cold?

If they have a cough from a cold that hangs on, they are in constant danger. Many a serious illness follows neglected colds. If a cold is permitted to persist, it can lead and often does lead into dangerous complications.

Don't let them trifle with colds. Suggest fresh air, lots of sleep, a simple diet, clean intestines and—Creomulsion. Colds are infectious. They endanger all of the family. If there's a cough from a chest cold or bronchial irritation in your family, go and get Creomulsion.

Creomulsion taken promptly will help you avoid dangerous diseases and the expense and loss of time when sick in bed. We guarantee relief for coughs from colds, or we'll refund your money. advt.

CARNERA, 'I POONCH'; RIOUX, 'I KEEL THE BIG BUM'

ILLUMINATING STATEMENTS BY 2 FIGHT PRINCIPALS

MATCH BETWEEN HEAVYWEIGHTS STIRS UP FISTIC INTEREST IN CHICAGO

ITALIAN GIANT HAS WHOLE TOWN ANXIOUS TO SEE HIM IN ACTION

By BERT DEMBY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Chicago, Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—"Poonch! Poonch!" That is what Primo Carnera says he will do to Elzear Rioux tonight.

"I keel the big bum!" And that is what Rioux says he will do to Primo.

So, there, ladies and gentlemen, you have the last minute statements of the two principals in Chicago's imminent elephant weight battle.

Although it has little or no bearing on the present scramble for the heavyweight title, the fight has brought out fistic interest.

The fans think Carnera will win and it was possible to get almost any odds asked if one wanted to bet on Rioux. Carnera has the whole town anxious to see him and officials of the Chicago stadium believe for once they will sell all of the 23,000 seats for a gate of $50,000.

The fight itself may or may not be worth watching. The opinion prevails that Carnera will knock over Rioux much in the same manner that he clouted Big Boy Peterson in his first appearance in this country.

But that matters not. The fans want to see Carnera, the fellow who, they've been told, eats hams whole, can't wear a ready-made article except cuff and collar buttons, carries a 35 pound cane, is as big as Art Shires claims to be, and in general is the biggest, most ferocious man in existence.

TO BOWL IN CENTRAL STATE TOURNAMENT

William Demmers and C. C. Van Essen, members of the Van's Cafe Straightaway league team, will leave Sunday for St. Cloud where they have entered to roll in the singles and doubles of the Central Minnesota Bowling association tournament.

Robert Block and P. E. Rowell are also expected to compete.

PURDUE MURPHY BEATS LOYOLA MURPHY 25-20

Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—The teammates of Charles Murphy of Purdue found the basket in better fashion than the cage cohorts of Charles Murphy of Loyola last night and the Boilermakers came out on the long end of a 25 to 20 score.

It was Loyola's first loss after 34 consecutive victories but the Chicago quintet forced the Big Nine pacemakers into an overtime period.

Purdue's Murphy scored two field goals and two free tosses while Loyola's Murphy caged four two-pointers and a charity toss.

NOTHING DEFINITE THAT BIERMAN MAY BE ENGAGED

SPORTS EXPERTS TO INVESTIGATE MINNESOTA ATHLETICS STATUS

ITS RECOMMENDATIONS MAY INFLUENCE TYPE OF COACH SELECTED

Minneapolis, Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—Reports generally were discounted on the campus today that University of Minnesota athletic authorities nearly had completed negotiations with Bernis Bierman of Tulane to come here as head football coach.

Persons close to the student senate committee said no immediate action will be taken to obtain a coach, after the appointment of a committee of nationally known intercollegiate sports experts to investigate Minnesota athletics.

The committee will be composed of Major John L. Griffith, commissioner of the western conference, President H. M. Gage of Coe college, C. W. Savage, athletic director of Oberlin college, and Grantland Rice, New York sports writer.

It was reported the committee will take no part in the actual appointment of the coach. However, persons close to the situation said its recommendations along general lines might lead the university to select a certain type of coach.

Fred W. Leuhning, athletic director, today declined to comment on the possibility that Bierman, Tom Lieb of Notre Dame, Tad Wieman of Michigan or Dutch Bergman, assistant Minnesota coach, might succeed Dr. C. W. Spears, as head gridiron mentor.

SPORTS KAYOES

By "HAPPY"

Tonight we will see what Little Falls has to offer. If the Kaschmen are still hitting the same pace they displayed down at St. Cloud last weekend Coach Burnett's boys are going to be in for a stormy evening.

We fondly hope the Brainerd boys will display better marksmanship from the free throw line than their coach, Warren Kasch, did the other evening in the Trotter-Henning game. Coach Kasch made three out of a possible nine. Not so torrid!

Some will say that reach proved itself superior to swiftness last evening. Others will say that the man-to-man defense proved to be superior to the zone defense. But anyway the battle of the Murphys (and we don't mean potatoes) resulted in favor of "Stretch" Murphy and his Boilermakers. The Loyola quintet, under the leadership of "Speed" Murphy lost its first game in 35 starts.

Lester Peterson announced today that he would cut his Globe Trotters squad to ten men. This looks like a wise move on the part of the Trotter manager as the line-up was changing so often in the Henning battle as to seriously affect the team work of the quintet. And it shouldn't be a bit hard to pick ten good men out of the material — the only trouble is that it seems a shame to have to drop some good players.

The Trotters are attempting to book games now with fast quintets in Bagley, International Falls and Bemidji, for a little road trip during some weekend the latter part of February.

So Tom Lieb wants $10,000 a year for three years to coach Minnesota football. Well, what is the university hesitating about? Tom is certainly worth the amount he is asking and more too. Tom knows his football.

The annual dog derby will be held here Feb. 15. The event is sponsored by the American Legion. The young mushers are already training their possible entries, ranging from Great Danes to Mexican Hairless.

The J. C. Penney hockey team will meet the Ironton sextet, champions of the range, tomorrow afternoon at Crosby. The game will be called at 2 P. M. Ironton has dropped the Crosby puck chasers on two occasions but lost to the Red Devils here last Sunday. Tomorrow's battle should prove an interesting one.

The New York fight commission thinks Johnny Risko is too small to fight Campolo. That is tough on Johnny. They won't let an aspiring young man be a giant killer any more. That would have been tough on Dempsey when he fought Willard. And where is the commission going to find a man big enough to play tag with Primo Carnera?

Primo Carnera, 275 pounds, had a little game of tag with Big Boy Peterson, 230 pounds, a few nights ago. He tagged Big Boy four times in the first round for a count, and the last time Peterson didn't hear the referee extolling "ten" because he was too interested in the birds singing spring songs.

The Globe Trotters may play a travelling team, the New York Negroes, here soon. The colored boys have an enviable record and they do a lot of exhibitional stunts on the floor. They lost a 35-33 decision to the St. Paul A. C. the other evening after doing a little too much "stunting."

AL SINGER AND LOAYZA IN BOUT AT THE GARDEN

FADING VETERAN AND ASPERING YOUNGSTER TO CLASH IN FIGHT TONIGHT

LOAYZA OF CHILE TAKES EXCEPTION TO STATEMENT HE IS "WASHED UP"

New York, Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—Paths of a fading veteran who twice competed for the world's lightweight championship and a youngster regarded as the boxer most likely to succeed Sammy Mandell as lightweight titleholder will cross at Madison Square Garden tonight, when Al Singer of New York and Stanislaus Loayza of Chile meet in a ten-round match.

Loayza takes exception to the statement that he is "washed up" and points out that he has engaged in only 52 bouts and that Singer has had more in fights. However, all of Loayza's fights have been hard battles while most of Singer's have been little more than exercise gallops and the betting men have made Singer a 2 to 1 favorite.

KASCH AND CARRY BOYS DOPED TO WIN TONIGHT

LITTLE FALLS, HOWEVER, TO REVEAL NEW STRENGTH FOR THIS GAME

FRESHMEN TO MEET RIVERTON IN PRELIMINARY; SECONDS PLAY AT PEQUOT

The Kasch and Carry Boys, the quint that carries on to victory for their school and their coach, are doped to win tonight's clash at the Washington high school but Little Falls is expected to provide plenty of scrap and maybe an uneasy moment or two for the local fans.

More than 1,000 fans will turnout to the school gymnasium this evening to see their team in action again.

If the team plays like it did at Alexandria and St. Cloud last week, there will be no question as to the outcome. Even such a strong team as Crosby-Ironton would have to take a back seat to the powerful team that subdued St. Cloud Tech-High 30 to 11 and Alexandria 20 to 14.

The preliminary game on tonight's card will be played between the Freshmen and the Riverton school. The game will start at 7:10 P. M. with the main encounter at 8 P. M. While the regulars are playing here, the seconds will play at Pequot.

The line-ups of the three Brainerd high school teams in action tonight follows:

Regulars—Hautala, E. Foster, forwards; C. Guin, center; B. Foster and Clausen, guards; Hoffbauer, Schuety, Garvey and Marshall, subs.

Seconds—Mayo, Gablon, forwards; Larson, center; D. Guin and Templeton, guards; Hass and Dryburg, subs. Freshmen—Ray Wise, Leo Garvey, forwards; Swanson, center; White and McPherson, guards; Muistonen, Dahl, subs.

ONLY 9 POINTS MADE IN 3 BIG HOCKEY GAMES

MONTREAL CANADIENS AND CHICAGO BLACKHAWKS TURNED IN BEST GAME

FLYING FRENCHMEN FORCED INTO OVERTIME FOR 1-0 VICTORY

New York, Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—With two teams failing to break into the scoring column, only nine points were made in the National Hockey League's three contests last night.

The Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Blackhawks turned in the best game with the Flying Frenchmen being forced into overtime for a 1 to 0 victory. Goalies Chuck Gardiner and George Hainsworth shared honors.

Montreal's Maroons drubbed the Toronto Maple Leafs, 3 to 0, shoving the losers down from the playoffs.

The New York Americans nosed out the Detroit Cougars, 3 to 2, in a listless game at Madison Square Garden.

Is Maxie the McCoy?

By HARDIN BURNLEY

THE BERLIN BOMBER STILL CASTS A THREATENING SHADOW UPON THE HEAVYWEIGHT MAP

THE TEUTON schlager, who somewhat resembles Jack Dempsey, returns to America with high hopes of having Max Schmeling engraved on the Muldoon-Tunney trophy symbolic of the world's heavyweight boxing championship. The black-haired, dark-jowled conqueror of Johnny Risko and Paulino Uzcudun is willing to battle Jack Sharkey in the year's big outdoor fistic show next summer, the steam-up for which has already started and promotional intrigue for which has been electrifying the inside world of sports for some time.

Meanwhile many thousands ask: "Is Schmeling a great fighter? Or just another fair heavy who happened to stop Risko because the latter had shot his punches at too fast a pace, and who later out-pointed Paulino in fifteen rounds without knocking the weary Basque off his feet?"

In answering such questions, please note that all the fight experts who have examined Schmeling personally admit that he looks and acts "like the real McCoy" so far as ring ability is concerned. He hits hard with either hand, is fast in all fighting movements, and can take a socking if necessary. He's in his early twenties just rarin' to go.

The only real trouble Schmeling stumbled into thus far in his American career has been the bitter and litigious break between him and his former German manager, and the promise-breaking episode with the New York State Athletic Commission when he refused to box Phil Scott after being permitted to battle Paulino on that condition.

Most fans are familiar with Schmeling's managerial malfeasances. Arriving in the United States about a year and a half ago, Arthur Bulow, then his manager, could not click him into the clubs because both he and Max were strangers in a strange land. Certain smart talent among our American sharpshooters muscled in on Der Maxie, as the boys say, got him a match or two which he won, and soon Schmeling was giving his one-time pal the "rausmit" while 7½, 5 and even 3 per cent managers representing him were running all over the sporting lot. Max refused to honor any contracts signed by Bulow, toured the so-called sticks briefly, balked the New York boxing authorities, and went back to Germany, where a syndicate is reported to have bought out Bulow's interest, taking over Schmeling's managerial control.

Now Max is returning to America's ring El Dorado, already booked for a big bout at the huge Atlantic City Auditorium late in March. His opponent has not been named at this writing, but it will not be Jack Sharkey. An open air New York date with the latter, what Schmeling and the syndicate backing him are banking on to make 1936 a prosperous, if not a championship year for the Hamburg Hammer.

Unless a rather long layoff and that managerial mess have blunted the German's fighting blade, the Sport Bug is inclined to think that Maxie is the real McCoy in ring class but... not as good as Sharkey at his best.

CAMPOLO FLOORED MIKE FERRARA 35 TIMES IN 3½ ROUNDS IN A BOUT IN ARGENTINA!

out. Until the first knockdown in the ninth round, Mastro had a clear winning lead. But that technical K. O. against Taylor was tough luck, indeed.

The same night, Steve Rocco bumped Willie Davies through the ropes in a flyweight battle at Toronto. Willie was stunned when his head whacked the press table and so the bout ended. He was rushed to a hospital where the good news came that Davies was not seriously hurt.

Everyone will recall that Jack Dempsey had far better luck when Luis Firpo sent the old champ heels up over the ropes with one berseck rush in their Polo Grounds classic. The hard-bitten tiger-man spread-eagled a reporter's typewriter, and for self-protection some scribes cushioned Dempsey's fall. He returned to the ring in time to pole-axe the groggy "Wild Bull" early in the next—the second—round. That was the warmest knockdown carnival ever staged in less than two rounds of a heavy-weight championship bout. Dempsey had Firpo down seven times before his own thrilling trip through the ropes, and had been dropped to his knees for an instant with the Argentine's first punch as the opening bell echoed. After the scramble back from press row Jack slammed Luis down three times before the latter was counted out.

But a knockdown record for all time must have been set by Vittorio Campolo in one of his early starts against Michele Ferrara, an Argentine bouncer. In less than three rounds the Pride of the Andes floored "Little Firpo" Ferrara thirty-five times.

"That is one for the book!" sports bugs may exclaim.

"For a fairy book!" some of us may add.

All of which intimates that Buenos Aires boxing historians may have but little to learn from our Barnums, Rickards, Dan Morgans, Jimmy Johnstons and Leo P. Flynns in the art of exaggeration.

CARNERA, 'I POONCH'; RIOUX, 'I KEEL THE BIG BUM'

ILLUMINATING STATEMENTS BY 2 FIGHT PRINCIPALS

MATCH BETWEEN HEAVYWEIGHTS STIRS UP FISTIC INTEREST IN CHICAGO

ITALIAN GIANT HAS WHOLE TOWN ANXIOUS TO SEE HIM IN ACTION

By BERT DEMBY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Chicago, Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—"Poonch! Poonch!" That is what Primo Carnera says he will do to Elzear Rioux tonight.

"I keel the big bum!" And that is what Rioux says he will do to Primo.

So, there, ladies and gentlemen, you have the last minute statements of the two principals in Chicago's imminent elephant weight battle.

Although it has little or no bearing on the present scramble for the heavyweight title, the fight has brought out fistic interest.

The fans think Carnera will win and it was possible to get almost any odds asked if one wanted to bet on Rioux. Carnera has the whole town anxious to see him and officials of the Chicago stadium believe for once they will sell all of the 23,000 seats for a gate of $50,000 to $70,000.

The fight itself may or may not be worth watching. The opinion prevails that Carnera will knock over Rioux much in the same manner that he clouted Big Boy Peterson in his first appearance in this country.

But that matters not. The fans want to see Carnera, the fellow who, they've been told, eats hams whole, can't wear a ready made article except cuff and collar buttons, carries a 35 pound cane, is as big as Art Shires claims to be, and in general is the biggest, most ferocious man in existence.

TO BOWL IN CENTRAL STATE TOURNAMENT

William Demmers and C. C. Van Essen, members of the Van's Cafe Straightaway league team, will leave Sunday for St. Cloud where they have been entered to roll in the singles and doubles of the Central Minnesota Bowling association tournament.

Robert Block and P. E. Rowell are also expected to compete.

PURDUE MURPHY BEATS LOYOLA MURPHY 25-20

Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—The teammates of Charles Murphy of Purdue found the basket in better fashion than the cage cohorts of Charles Murphy of Loyola last night and the Boilermakers came out on the long end of a 25 to 20 score.

It was Loyola's first loss after 34 consecutive victories but the Chicago quintet forced the Big Nine pacemakers into an overtime period.

Purdue's Murphy scored two field goals and two free tosses while Loyola's Murphy caged four two-pointers and a charity toss.

NOTHING DEFINITE THAT BIERMAN MAY BE ENGAGED

SPORTS EXPERTS TO INVESTIGATE MINNESOTA ATHLETICS STATUS

ITS RECOMMENDATIONS MAY INFLUENCE TYPE OF COACH SELECTED

Minneapolis, Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—Reports generally were discredited on the campus today that University of Minnesota athletic authorities nearly had completed negotiations with Bernie Bierman of Tulane to come here as head football coach.

Persons close to the student senate committee said no immediate action will be taken to obtain a coach, after the appointment of a committee of nationally known intercollegiate sports experts to investigate Minnesota athletics.

The committee will be composed of Major John L. Griffith, commissioner of the western conference, President H. M. Gage of Coe college, C. W. Savage, athletic director of Oberlin college, and Grantland Rice, New York sports writer.

It was reported the committee will take no part in the actual appointment of the coach. However, persons close to the situation said its recommendations along general lines might lead the university to select a certain type of coach.

Fred W. Leubright, athletic director, today declined to comment on the possibility that Bierman, Tom Lieb of Notre Dame, Tad Wieman of Michigan or Dutch Beysman, assistant Minnesota coach, might succeed Dr. C. W. Spears, as head gridiron mentor.

SPORTS KAYOES

By "HAPPY"

Tonight we will see what Little Falls has to offer. If the Kaschmen are still hitting the same pace they displayed down at St. Cloud last week-end Coach Burnett's boys are going to be in for a stormy evening.

We fondly hope the Brainerd boys will display better marksmanship from the free throw line than their coach, Warren Kasch, did the other evening in the Trotter-Henning game. Coach Kasch made three out of a possible nine. Not so, torrid!

Some will say that reach proved itself superior to swiftness last evening. Others will say that the man-to-man defense proved to be superior to the zone defense. But anyway the battle of the Murphys (and we don't mean potatoes) resulted in favor of "Stretch Murphy" and his Boilermakers. The Loyola quintet, under the leadership of "Speed" Murphy lost its first game in 35 starts.

Lester Peterson announced today that he would cut his Globe Trotters squad to ten men. This looks like a wise move on the part of the Trotter manager as the line-up was changing so often in the Henning battle as to seriously affect the team work of the quintet. And it shouldn't be a bit hard to pick ten good men out of the material — the only trouble is that it seems a shame to have to drop some good players.

The Trotters are attempting to book games now with fast quintets in Bagley, International Falls and Bemidji, for a little road trip during some week-end the latter part of February.

So Tom Lieb wants $10,000 a year for three years to coach Minnesota football. Well, what is the university hesitating about? Tom is certainly worth the amount he is asking and more too. Tom knows his football.

The annual dog derby will be held here Feb. 15. The event is sponsored by the American Legion. The young mushers are already training their possible entries, ranging from Great Danes to Mexican Hairless.

The J. C. Penney hockey team will meet the Ironton sextet, champions of the range, tomorrow afternoon at Crosby. The game will be called at 2 P. M. Ironton has dropped the Crosby puck chasers on two occasions but lost to the Red Devils here last Sunday. Tomorrow's battle should prove an interesting one.

The New York fight commission thinks Johnny Risko is too small to fight Campolo. That is tough on Johnny. They won't let an aspiring young man be a giant killer any more. That would have been tough on Dempsey when he fought Willard. And where is the commission going to find a man big enough to play tag with Primo Carnera?

Primo Carnera, 270 pounds, had a little game of tag with Big Boy Peterson, 220 pounds, a few nights ago. He tagged Big Boy four times in the first round for a count, and the last time Peterson didn't hear the referee's tolling "ten" because he was too interested in the birdies singing spring songs.

The Globe Trotters may play a travelling team, the New York Negroes, here soon. The colored boys have an enviable record and they do a lot of exhibitional stunts on the floor. They lost a 35-33 decision to the St. Paul A. C. the other evening after doing a little too much "stunting."

AL SINGER AND LOAYZA IN BOUT AT THE GARDEN

FADING VETERAN AND ASPIRING YOUNGSTER TO CLASH IN FIGHT TONIGHT

LOAYZA OF CHILE TAKES EXCEPTION TO STATEMENT HE IS "WASHED UP"

New York, Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—Paths of a fading veteran who twice competed for the world's lightweight championship and a youngster regarded as the boxer most likely to succeed Sammy Mandell as lightweight titleholder will cross at Madison Square Garden tonight, when Al Singer of New York and Stanislaus Loayza of Chile meet in a ten-round match.

Loayza takes exception to the statement that he is "washed up" and points out that he has engaged in only 52 bouts and that Singer has had more in fights. However, all of Loayza's fights have been hard battles while most of Singer's have been little more than exercise gallops and the betting men have made Singer a 2 to 1 favorite.

KASCH AND CARRY BOYS DOPED TO WIN TONIGHT

LITTLE FALLS, HOWEVER, TO REVEAL NEW STRENGTH FOR THIS GAME

FRESHMEN TO MEET RIVERTON IN PRELIMINARY; SECONDS PLAY AT PEQUOT

The Kasch and Carry Boys, the quint that carries on to victory for their school and their coach, are doped to win tonight's clash at the Washington high school but Little Falls is expected to provide plenty of scrap and maybe an uneasy moment or two for the local fans.

More than 1,000 fans will turnout to the school gymnasium this evening to see their team in action again.

If the team plays like it did at Alexandria and St. Cloud last week, there will be no question as to the outcome. Even such a strong team as Crosby-Ironton would have to take a back seat to the powerful team that subdued St. Cloud Tech-High 30 to 11 and Alexandria 20 to 14.

The preliminary game on tonight's card will be played between the Freshmen and the Riverton school. The game will start at 7:10 P. M. with the main encounter at 8 P. M. While the regulars are playing here, the seconds will play at Pequot.

The line-ups of the three Brainerd

made in the National Hockey League's three contests last night.

The Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Blackhawks turned in the best game with the Flying Frenchmen being forced into overtime for a 1 to 0 victory. Goalies Chuck Gardiner and George Hainsworth shared honors.

Montreal's Maroons drubbed the Toronto Maple Leafs, 3 to 0, showing the losers down from the playoffs. The New York Americans nosed out the Detroit Cougars, 3 to 2, in a listless game at Madison Square Garden.

Is Maxie the McCoy?

By HARDIN BURNLEY

THE BERLIN BOMBER STILL CASTS A THREATENING SHADOW UPON THE HEAVYWEIGHT MAP

THE TEUTON schlager, who somewhat resembles Jack Dempsey, returns to America with high hopes of having Max Schmeling engraved on the Muldoon-Tunney trophy symbolic of the world's heavyweight boxing championship. The black-haired, dark-jawed conqueror of Johnny Risko and Paulino Uzcudun is willing to battle Jack Sharkey in the year's big outdoor fistic show next summer, the steam-up for which has already started and promotional intrigue for which has been electrifying the inside world of sports for some time.

Meanwhile many thousands ask: "Is Schmeling a great fighter? Or just another fair heavy who happened to stop Risko because the latter had shot his punches at too fast a pace, and who later out-pointed Paulino in fifteen rounds without knocking the weary Basque off his feet?"

In answering such questions, please note that all the fight experts who have examined Schmeling personally admit that he looks and acts "like the real McCoy" so far as ring ability is concerned. He hits hard with either hand, is fast in all fighting movements, and can take a socking if necessary. He's in his early twenties just rarin' to go.

The only real trouble Schmeling stumbled into thus far in his American career has been the bitter and litigious break between him and his former German manager, and the promise-breaking episode with the New York State Athletic Commission when he refused to box Phil Scott after being permitted to battle Paulino on that condition.

Most fans are familiar with Schmeling's managerial maelstroms. Arriving in the United States about a year and a half ago, Arthur Bulow, then his manager, could not click him into the clubs because both he and Max were strangers in a strange land. Certain smart talent among our Americanese sharpshooters muscled in on Der Maxie, as the boys say, got him a match or two which he won, and soon Schmeling was giving his one-time pal the "rausmit" while 7½, 5 and even 3 per cent managers representing him were running all over the sporting lot. Max refused to honor any contracts signed by Bulow, toured the so-called sticks briefly, balked the New York boxing authorities, and went back to Germany, where a syndicate is reported to have bought out Bulow's interest, taking over Schmeling's managerial control.

Now Max is returning to America's ring El Dorado, already booked for a big bout at the huge Atlantic City Auditorium late in March. His opponent has not been named at this writing, but it will not be Jack Sharkey. An open air New York date with the latter is what Schmeling and the syndicate backing him are banking on to make 1930 a prosperous, if not a championship year for the Hamburg Hammer.

Unless a rather long layoff and that managerial mess have blunted the German's fighting blade, the Sport Bug is inclined to think that Maxie is the real McCoy in ring class but... not as good as Sharkey at his best.

FEDERAL PROBE OF 10,000 LAKES FUR FARM CORP.

ASSISTANT U. S. ATTORNEY QUESTIONS FORMER WARDEN OF GAME AND FISH DEPT.

HENNEPIN COUNTY CONTINUES QUESTIONING INTO ASSETS OF THE CONCERN

St. Paul, Jan. 31.—(UP)—Entrance of the federal government into the investigation of affairs of the Ten Thousand Lakes Fur Farm Corporation was made known today after M. F. Kinkad, assistant United States attorney, questioned O. E. Martin, a former warden of the state game and fish department.

The former warden was said to have told Kinkad that his department granted permits to fur farms concerns which had insufficient assets to operate properly. Martin also criticized the fish and game department for allowing commercial fishermen to take thousands of fish from Minnesota lakes.

He intimated the Ten Thousand Lakes Corporation sold "unit contract sales" to investors before their properties had been stocked with a single muskrat. Claims of the corporation to 1,000 pairs of rats, he said, were proven false, but the fish and game department took no action.

Meanwhile, the Hennepin county grand jury continued questioning witnesses into assets of the concern and the manner in which the contract sales were issued.

APPEALS TO TIDE NEEDY IN CHICAGO

CITY AND COUNTY EMPLOYEES HAVE NO WAGES PAID BY CHICAGO REGIME

By MERTON T. AKERS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, Jan. 31.—Thousands of appeals went out today to the glittering hotels and mansions of the gold coast and the south lake short district begging charity cash to tide needy families of city and county employees over Chicago's financial stringency.

Joel D. Hunter, general superintendent of the United Charities, sounded the call for additional finances when he found himself confronted with "heavier demands than we have had to meet in years." He broadcast a general appeal to 15,000 persons.

With more than 40,000 public employees unpaid for almost two months, taxes held up for 20 months by litigation and reassessments and budgets rendered impotent by lack of cash to fulfill them, appeals for charity rolled in so fast that the United Charities was hard pressed to meet them.

Eviction into snow-bound streets with the temperature below the freezing mark every day threatened workers who have failed to pay their rent. Food, coal and shelter have become problems with no solution in sight until the city's debts are straightened out.

Savings of many families already have dwindled away and in many cases their credit is exhausted. Those gone, the workers' only hope for existence lies in charity and loans; the latter often at high rates of interest.

Three more moves to relieve the city's financial dilemma were thrust into public notice.

Governor Emmerson has called the taxing bodies of Cook county together for conference today.

H. Wallace Caldwell, president of the school board, called a meeting of suburban bankers to talk over measures to extend credit to school employees.

Silas Strawn and his "rescue committee" had before it an appeal for $2,000,000 for current expenses of the county but had taken no action.

Spending
Children should be taught how to spend as well as to save. To know the value of money is the best check to wasteful spending and, therefore, teaches saving.

GLUTEN

Occident is milled from the choicest high-protein wheat. Every ear of wheat is subjected to analysis in a modern laboratory.

WHEAT flour contains a quality known as "gluten." Gluten is an elastic substance which expands with the gas released from yeast during the break-baking process. This quality in gluten forms the cellular network of the loaf... makes the bread "light" and palatable. Occident Flour is exceptionally high in both quality and quantity of gluten—because it is milled from the finest high protein hard wheat.

Through the higher quality of Occident you obtain finer flavor, lasting freshness and added food value as well. Occident costs more—and is worth it!

FEDERAL PROBE OF 10,000 LAKES FUR FARM CORP.

ASSISTANT U.S. ATTORNEY QUESTIONS FORMER WARDEN OF GAME AND FISH DEPT.

HENNEPIN COUNTY CONTINUES QUESTIONING INTO ASSETS OF THE CONCERN

St. Paul, Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—Entrance of the federal government into the investigation of affairs of the Ten Thousand Lakes Fur Farm Corporation was made known today after M. F. Kinkead, assistant United States attorney, questioned O. E. Martin, a former warden of the state game and fish department.

The former warden was said to have told Kinkead that his department granted permits to fur farms concerns which had insufficient assets to operate properly. Martin also criticized the fish and game department for allowing commercial fishermen to take thousands of fish from Minnesota lakes.

He intimated the Ten Thousand Lakes Corporation sold "unit contract sales" to investors before their properties had been stocked with a single muskrat. Claims of the corporation to 1,000 pairs of rats, he said, were proven false, but the fish and game department took no action.

Meanwhile, the Hennepin county grand jury continued questioning witnesses into assets of the concern and the manner in which the contract sales were issued.

APPEALS TO TIDE NEEDY IN CHICAGO

CITY AND COUNTY EMPLOYEES HAVE NO WAGES PAID BY
CHICAGO REGIME

By MERTON T. AKERS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, Jan. 31.—Thousands of appeals went out today to the glittering hotels and mansions of the gold coast and the south lake short district begging charity cash to tide needy families of city and county employees over Chicago's financial stringency.

Joel D. Hunter, general superintendent of the United Charities, sounded the call for additional finances when he found himself confronted with "heavier demands than we have had to meet in years." He broadcast a general appeal to 15,000 persons.

With more than 40,000 public employees unpaid for almost two months, taxes held up for 20 months by litigation and reassessments and budgets rendered impotent by lack of cash to fulfill them, appeals for charity rolled in so fast that the United Charities was hard pressed to meet them.

Eviction into snow-bound streets with the temperature below the freezing mark every day threatened workers who have failed to pay their rent. Food, coal and shelter have become problems with no solution in sight until the city's debts are straightened out.

Savings of many families already have dwindled away and in many cases their credit is exhausted. Those gone, the workers' only hope for existence lies in charity and loans; the latter often at high rates of interest.

Three more moves to relieve the city's financial dilemma were thrust into public notice.

Governor Emmerson has called the taxing bodies of Cook county together for conference today.

H. Wallace Caldwell, president of the school board, called a meeting of suburban bankers to talk over measures to extend credit to school employees.

Silas Strawn and his "rescue committee" had before it an appeal for $200,000 for current expenses of the county but had taken no action.

Spending
Children should be taught how to spend as well as to save. To know the value of money is the best check to wasteful spending and, therefore, teaches saving.

Instinctive Fears
There are two things which call out a fear response—a loud sound and a loss of support.

GET WASTE OUT OF YOUR SYSTEM

Banish Constipation at the Start with Kellogg's
ALL-BRAN

Look out when you wake up tired and stay tired. Beware of headaches, unpleasant breath. These are usually the first symptoms of constipation.

The trouble is that your intestinal system is clogged. You have eaten too many bulkless foods. But you can clean your system safely, if you start at once to eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a cereal that you can eat naturally. It sweeps the intestines clean of poisonous wastes. Far better than habit-forming pills and drugs.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—recurring cases with every meal. You'll like its crispness and flavor. Your system will benefit by its rich store of iron and healthful elements as well as by its roughage.

Ready-to-eat with milk or cream. Delicious with fruits and honey added. Use it in cooking. Recipes are on the package for muffins and griddle cakes. Sold by all grocers. Served by hotels, restaurants and dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

GLUTEN

WHEAT flour contains a quality known as "gluten." Gluten is an elastic substance which expands with the gas released from yeast during the break-baking process. This quality in gluten forms the cellular network of the loaf... makes the bread "light" and palatable. Occident Flour is exceptionally high in both quality and quantity of gluten—because it is milled from the finest high protein hard wheat.

Through the higher quality of Occident you obtain finer flavor, lasting freshness and added food value as well. Occident costs more—and is worth it!

MISS HELEN HERR VERY ENTHUSIASTIC

New Field Secretary of League of Women Voters Heard in Brainerd

ADDRESSES LOCAL LEAGUE

Speaks of National and Local Problems Affecting Women

If enthusiasm for and belief in your product is the first quality of a good saleswoman, Miss Helen Herr, the new field secretary of the League of Women Voters, can certainly qualify.

At the League meeting at the home of the new president, Mrs. J. J. Cummins, Thursday afternoon and evening, Miss Herr demonstrated her enthusiasm for the cause.

After telling something of the work of the national and state organizations and mentioning a few typical local leagues, she said that she didn't like to think of the League as divided into these units, she liked to think of it as a great body of women standing together the science of government in order that they may understand how our government functions and may learn how to make it function more effectively.

She mentioned the League method of from one to three years of careful study of a question before it is placed on the legislative program and then gave a brief resume of the bills in which the League is interested. As a sort of apology for spending so much time upon a subject with which the women were thoroughly familiar, she told the story of the League at a small town in Minnesota that had been functioning for ten years, lead by the same chairman. They had faithfully worked for these same bills in the legislature every two years and had written their congressmen regarding the Maternity and Infancy bill, the Cable bill, Muscle Shoals, the Child Labor amendment, the World Court, the Lame Duck amendment and had worked with their legislatures to secure appropriations under the Shepherd Towner bill, to secure an improvement in the marriage laws, the ratification of the child labor amendment, the teacher's pension bill, the fifty-four hour law for women in industry, etc., and finally they rebelled. They said they wanted something new to work for—they were sick of the same old stuff. So Miss Herr reported this rebellion at J—to the state president, Miss Wells. She replied: "You go back and tell J—that I'm sick of it too and for them to get out and work hard enough for these bills to put them through, so that we'll be done with them."

Although the League is slow to place legislation on its calendar, it is still slower to take it off, once they are convinced that such social legislation is desirable. Of course legislation that benefits society as a whole and no particular individual or class of individuals makes slow headway. That has been the history of such legislation in every country and in all ages. Consequently, great patience and greater enthusiasm for the cause is essential to success.

After demonstrating her own enthusiasm for the cause, Miss Herr tried to test the enthusiasm of the Brainerd League by pertinent questions and by offering help in the solution of local problems. She brought out the fact that even if very little local work was accomplished, it was worth while to keep in touch with the work that was being accomplished by this organization in state and nation, and do our bit to help it along.

She made suggestions for public programs, such as using a little play that has been written on the Lame Duck Amendment, and reviewing the World Court situation by dividing the negotiations into four parts and having them reviewed by the "school method." These suggestions will probably be adopted and placed on the local program at the next board meeting.

The radio 5 o'clock program over WCCO prevented further discussion. This was given by the Legal Status of Women Chairman—Miss Florence Monahan. The announcer stated that Miss Monahan had been admitted to the bar but that she had, for years, conducted a model women's prison at Shakopee.

Miss Monahan began her talk by stating why the League of Women Voters did not endorse the legal equality blanket amendment, so ardently pushed by the Women's party. She stated that this would cause the greatest confusion. To illustrate this, she said that no one would know, if such an amendment were passed, whether a boy could legally marry without his parents' consent at the age of 18, or whether a girl would have to wait until she was 21. This would have to be determined by a test case. She also stated that such an amendment would throw into the discard all of the legislation that had been built up by long years of effort to protect working women—the mothers of the race.

The League, therefore, preferred to attack particular inequalities and work for equality through this slower, but safer, method. As an illustration, she pointed out the amendments to the Cable law for which the League is working in order to equalize the conditions under which men and women gain or lose their citizenship. She stated that if women who had married foreigners before the passage of this law lost their citizenship, men who had married foreign women should also be required to become naturalized. But her conclusion was that such a predicament Ruth Bryan Owens finds herself in at this time should not be possible for either sex. Neither men nor women should lose their citizenship either through marriage or long residence abroad, if they did not wish to do so even though it required an international treaty to protect such citizenship.

Miss Monahan then spoke at length on women's right to jury service. She stated that there were still 12 counties in Minnesota where women were not placed on the jury panel. In one county—Renville—the matter had been tested through mandamus proceedings and the state supreme court had held that women could not be excluded from the jury panel. This meant that cases might have to be tried over at great expense to the state, in case a county board refused to place the names of women on such a panel.

It was not only with her legal mind, but with considerable feeling that Miss Monahan attacked common law marriage. She told of case after case of injustice done through this practice. She claimed that instead of being a protection to women, it was a clever method of depriving them of their rights. It was also a great injustice to children—often depriving them of their just inheritance. She stated that the people who practice common law marriage are the very ones who need protection most and that ours is the only civilized country in which such a practice is tolerated.

With equal heat, she discussed the five day waiting period which the League has been working for between the application for and issuance of the marriage license. This would prevent many marriages of runaway couples and many ill-considered impulses to wed that a waiting period would frustrate. Better marriage laws, she maintained, would lead to fewer divorces and she believed that prevention was better than cure through the divorce courts.

She accused the organized selfishness of clerks of courts for preventing the passage of this much needed social legislation. It was because of the fees obtained from runaway couples from our border states that these county officers were opposing this progressive measure.

After the radio program, which came in very clearly, the board decided to hold a meeting at the home of Mrs. A. M. Opsahl, 409 North 4th street on Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 4, to complete the program for the year and the complete reorganization of the board by adding all of the committees required by the state.

TRUNK HIGHWAYS CONTINUE GOOD

Trunk highways continue generally good, according to the weekly road condition report issued today by the Minnesota Highway department. There are a few rough stretches due to packed snow or heaving of the subgrade, and motorists are cautioned to use moderate speed. They are also urged to drive carefully in turns and on steep grades, or slippery spots may lead to accidents.

Although all roads are reported open, there is much loose snow in some sections of the state, and winds may quickly drift and block some routes. Travelers are cautioned to be prepared for possible delays due to weather changes.

Detailed reports of roads in the Brainerd Lake Region follow:
T. H. No. 2—Duluth, Brainerd, Wadena, Detroit Lakes and Moorhead—260 miles—Duluth, paved—Carlton, good—Hawley, paved—Moorhead.
T. H. No. 18—Elk River, Milaca and Brainerd—103 miles—Good.
T. H. No. 19—Brainerd, Walker and Cass Lake—93 miles—Good.
T. H. No. 27—St. Cloud, Little Falls and Brainerd—62 miles—Paved.

Nothing to Talk About
Each day's weather is the same on the moon, so there would be nothing to talk about, even if it were inhabited.—Florence (Ain) Herald.

TO STOCK LAKES OF DISTRICT IN MAY

Five Million Pike Fry, 100,000 Bass Fingerlings, 25 Cans Crappies Are Promised

STATE ASSISTANCE GIVEN

Applications for Spring Planting Should be Made Early to Al Weideman

Efforts being made by such men as A. A. Weideman, Brainerd and the appreciated cooperation of the State Game and Fish department are largely responsible for the future good fishing in lakes of Crow Wing county and district.

Five million pike fry will be allotted lakes in this area this spring while shipments of 100,000 bass fingerlings and 25 cans of crappies have been promised, Mr. Weideman reported today.

Anyone desiring lakes to be stocked are requested to make application through Mr. Weideman who will form the state department of the amount desired.

As evidence of good faith the following letter has been received by Mr. Weideman from Thaddeus Surber, superintendent of fish propagation of the department of conservation and office of the commissioner of game and fish.

"I have for acknowledgment your letter and am very much gratified to learn that the persistent stocking we have been doing in recent years is beginning to produce results. "Inasmuch as it is my constant aim to increase the output of our hatcheries, so far as possible, each succeeding season you can be assured that you will be properly taken care of so far as the pike distribution is concerned, and this remark may also be applied to our distribution of bass. The crappie question is an entirely different affair however as we have been able to rear but comparatively few of them and no longer procure any from the overflow lands of the Mississippi bottoms as we did years ago. However I am enclosing some applications blanks which you may fill out for crappies and I wish you would send me a list of the lakes you desire to take care of this coming May with pike fry so that the information may be available for use when the fry are available."

Already applications for crappies have been received for the stocking of South Long Lake, Lake Edward and Marquis Lake.

Admission charges are moderate. Tickets will be sold only at the door. The time is 7:45 o'clock.

Quin says all in the expedition are well.

DRAMATIC GROUP AT AUDITORIUM

Humor, Drama and Oratory at High School Monday, Feb. 3

SEVEN CONTESTANTS ENTERED

Selections Are Interesting and Varied in Their Appeal

In anticipation of the beauty and convenience of the new auditorium, the student body has showed a greater interest in declamation and oratory than ever before. More students have turned out than in preceding years, and as a result, much new talent has been discovered. The 60 or more that came out have been eliminated in various contests until now the survivors are to appear in the final contests before the district and sub-district meets.

Under Miss Oertling's supervision, various teachers have been coaching the contestants in humor, drama and oratory. Miss Oertling has been working at all hours of the day and evening, with the assistance of the teachers in coaching and judging, has the students ready for public presentation. On Monday next, Feb. 3, the dramatic group will give their selections in the auditorium for the benefit of the public. The selections are intensely interesting and varied in their appeal, and should attract a large audience. The following people are to give their readings for the benefit of those who are interested in the work along this line: Ardelle Persson, Maycelle Workman, Marjorie Forsberg, Bernice Steinfeldt, Alyce Little, Lela Shobe, Mildred Johnson.

Admission charges are moderate. Tickets will be sold only at the door. The time is 7:45 o'clock.

GEMMELL RENAMED TO DIOCESE COUNCIL

Rev. Brandon Appointed Assistant Superintendent of Summer School at Cass Lake

ST. PAUL'S DELEGATES HOME

Gemmell Further Honored by Being Selected Delegate to Provincial Synod

Rev. and Mrs. C. M. Brandon, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Farrar, R. R. Gould, J. A. Swanson, Mrs. M. W. Richards and Miss Winnifred Small have returned from Duluth where they attended the 35th annual convention of the Episcopal diocese of Duluth.

Plans were made at the convention to reassemble in June at which time a bishop co-adjutor will be elected. It is expected this meeting will be held at Duluth.

A very interesting summer school at Cass Lake is looked forward to this year. This school will be held the latter part of June, at which Rev. Brandon will be assistant superintendent.

W. H. Gemmell of the city was re-elected to the executive council, and also was chosen to represent the diocese at the provincial synod to be held this summer at Miles City, Mont.

A record number of delegates was registered from the various parishes of the diocese as well as splendid groups of the delegates of the Women's Auxiliary.

Of special interest were the reports made by the Indian missionaries of the work being carried on among the Indians by the Episcopal church. Five Indian clergy were present. These act as missionaries among the Indians, under the supervision of the Rev. W. K. Boyle.

A mass meeting was held Tuesday evening, at which time Bishop Bennett addressed the convention on the text "Go Ye." The Indian clergy also took part in the services of the mass meeting.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Diocese of Duluth held their annual meeting at the same time. They decided to erect a cabin at the Cass Lake mission school for the use of the summer school and will also be used by the Indians when their school is erected. The Auxiliary also voted to send $50 toward the building of the national cathedral at Washington, D. C. and sent $100 to rebuild the cathedral at Aberdeen, Scotland, which is known as the Seabury Memorial Fund. Mrs. George Ellis, president of the Indian

Women's Auxiliary was one of the speakers at the convention.

The convention concluded its sessions with a luncheon and tea Wednesday afternoon in St. Paul's parish house.

MILLER LAKE

A number of young folks gathered at Mrs. Elenore Anderson's home Friday evening and a very good time was reported by all.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Wunderlich are living at Borden Lake where he is employed cutting logs for George Smith.

Fred Dahlin of Chicago is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Soderlund.

Earle Borden sold a horse to Mr. Jones.

Mrs. Geo. McCalvy, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wunderlich were visitors at Borden's yesterday.

Mrs. Elenore Anderson visited with Mrs. Challen and Mrs. Soderlund Monday.

Allen Varner and Earnest Anderson are expected home any day.

Mr. and Mrs. Frahm spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Onwards.

Miss Ada Wunderlich has been with Mrs. Birger Anderson's the past week.

Thanks to Bert Allen and his plow, we have good open roads this winter.

MISS HELEN HERR VERY ENTHUSIASTIC

New Field Secretary of League of Women Voters Heard in Brainerd

ADDRESSES LOCAL LEAGUE

Speaks of National and Local Problems Affecting Women

If enthusiasm for and belief in your product is the first quality of a good saleswoman, Miss Helen Herr, the new field secretary of the League of Women Voters, can certainly qualify.

At the League meeting at the home of the new president, Mrs. J. J. Cummins, Thursday afternoon and evening, Miss Herr demonstrated her enthusiasm for the cause.

After telling something of the work of the national and state organizations and mentioning a few typical local leagues, she said that she didn't like to think of the League as divided into these units, she liked to think of it as a great body of women studying together the science of government in order that they may understand how our government functions and may learn how to make it function more effectively.

She mentioned the League method of from one to three years of careful study of a question before it is placed on the legislative program and then gave a brief resume of the bills in which the League is interested.

As a sort of apology for spending so much time upon a subject with which the women were thoroughly familiar, she told the story of the League at a small town in Minnesota that had been functioning for ten years, led by the same chairman. They had faithfully worked for these same bills in the legislature every two years and had written their congressmen regarding the Maternity and Infancy bill, the Cable bill, Muscle Shoals, the Child Labor amendment, the World Court, the Lame Duck amendment and had worked with their legislatures to secure appropriations under the Shepherd-Towner bill, to secure an improvement in the marriage laws, the ratification of the child labor amendment, the teacher's pension bill, the fifty-four hour law for women in industry, etc., and finally they rebelled. They said they wanted something new to work for—they were sick of the same old stuff. So Miss Herr reported this rebellion at J—to the state president, Miss Wells. She replied: "You go back and tell J—that I'm sick of it too and for them to get out and work hard enough for these bills to put them through, so that we'll be done with them."

Although the League is slow to place legislation on its calendar, it is still slower to take it off, once they are convinced that such social legislation is desirable. Of course legislation that benefits society as a whole and no particular individual or class of individuals makes slow headway. That has been the history of such legislation in every country and in all ages. Consequently, great patience and greater enthusiasm for the cause is essential to success.

After demonstrating her own enthusiasm for the cause, Miss Herr tried to test the enthusiasm of the Brainerd League by pertinent questions and by offering help in the solution of local problems. She brought out the fact that even if very little local work was accomplished, it was worth while to keep in touch with the work that was being accomplished by this organization in state and nation, and do our bit to help it along.

She made suggestions for public programs, such as using a little play that has been written on the Lame Duck Amendment, and reviewing the World Court situation by dividing the negotiations into four parts and having them reviewed by the "school method." These suggestions will probably be adopted and placed on the local program at the next board meeting.

The radio 5 o'clock program over WCCO prevented further discussion. This was given by the Legal Status of Women Chairman—Miss Florence Monahan. The announcer stated that Miss Monahan had been admitted to the bar but that she had, for years, conducted a model women's prison at Shakopee.

Miss Monahan began her talk by stating why the League of Women Voters did not endorse the legal equality blanket amendment, so ardently pushed by the Women's party. She stated that this would cause the greatest confusion. To illustrate this, she said that no one would know, if such an amendment were passed, whether a boy could legally marry without his parents' consent at the age of 18, or whether a girl would have to wait until she was 21. This would have to be determined by a test case. She also stated that such an amendment would throw into the discard all of the legislation that had been built up by long years of effort to protect working women—the mothers of the race.

The League, therefore, preferred to attack particular inequalities and work for equality through this slower, but safer, method. As an illustration, she pointed out the amendments to the Cable law for which the League is working in order to equalize the conditions under which men and women gain or lose their citizenship. She stated that if women who had married foreigners before the passage of this law lost their citizenship, men who had married foreign women should also be required to become naturalized. But her conclusion was that such a predicament Ruth Bryan Owens finds herself in at this time should not be possible for either sex. Neither men nor women should lose their citizenship either through marriage or long residence abroad, if they did not wish to do so even though it required an international treaty to protect such citizenship.

Miss Monahan then spoke at length on women's right to jury service. She stated that there were still 12 counties in Minnesota where still women were not placed on the jury panel. In one county—Renville—the matter had been tested through mandamus proceedings and the state supreme court had held that women could not be excluded from the jury panel. This meant that cases might have to be tried over at great expense to the state, in case a county board refused to place the names of women on such a panel.

It was not only with her legal mind, but with considerable feeling that Miss Monahan attacked common law marriage. She told of case after case of injustice done through this practice. She claimed that instead of being a protection to women, it was a clever method of depriving them of their rights. It was also a great injustice to children—often depriving them of their just inheritance. She stated that the people who practice common law marriage are the very ones who need protection most and that ours is the only civilized country in which such a practice is tolerated.

With equal heat, she discussed the five-day waiting period which the League has been working for between the application for and issuance of the marriage license. This would prevent many marriages of runaway couples and many ill-considered impulses to wed that a waiting period would frustrate. Better marriage laws, she maintained, would lead to fewer divorces and she believed that protection was better than cure through the divorce courts.

She accused the organized selfishness of clerks of courts for preventing the passage of this much needed social legislation. It was because of the fees obtained from runaway couples from our border states that these county officers were opposing this progressive measure.

TRUNK HIGHWAYS CONTINUE GOOD

Trunk highways continue generally good, according to the weekly road condition report issued today by the Minnesota Highway department. There are a few rough stretches due to packed snow or heaving of the sub-grade, and motorists are cautioned to use moderate speed. They are also urged to drive carefully in turns and on steep grades, or slippery spots may lead to accidents.

Although all roads are reported open, there is much loose snow in some sections of the state, and winds may quickly drift and block some routes. Travelers are cautioned to be prepared for possible delays due to weather changes.

Detailed reports of roads in the Brainerd Lake Region follow:
T. H. No. 2—Duluth, Brainerd, Wadena, Detroit Lakes and Moorhead—260 miles—Duluth, paved—Carlton, good—Hawley, paved—Moorhead.
T. H. No. 18—Elk River, Milaca and Brainerd—103 miles—Good.
T. H. No. 19—Brainerd, Walker and Cass Lake—93 miles—Good.
T. H. No. 27—St. Cloud, Little Falls and Brainerd—62 miles—Paved.

TO STOCK LAKES OF DISTRICT IN MAY

Five Million Pike Fry, 100,000 Bass Fingerlings, 25 Cans Crappies Are Promised

STATE ASSISTANCE GIVEN

Applications for Spring Planting Should be Made Early to Al Weideman

Efforts being made by such men as A. A. Weideman, Brainerd and the appreciated cooperation of the State Game and Fish department are largely responsible for the future good fishing in lakes of Crow Wing county and district.

Five million pike fry will be allotted lakes in this area this spring while shipments of 100,000 bass fingerlings and 25 cans of crappies have been promised, Mr. Weideman reported today.

Anyone desiring lakes to be stocked are requested to make application through Mr. Weideman who will inform the state department of the amount desired.

As evidence of good faith the following letter has been received by Mr. Weideman from Thaddeus Surber, superintendent of fish propagation of the department of conservation office of the commissioner of game and fish:

"I have for acknowledgment your letter and am very much gratified to learn that the persistent stocking we have been doing in recent years is beginning to produce results.

"Inasmuch as it is my constant aim to increase the output of our hatcheries, so far as possible, each succeeding season you can be assured that you will be properly taken care of so far as the pike distribution is concerned, and this remark may also be applied to our distribution of bass.

"The crappie question is an entirely different affair however as we have been able to rear but comparatively few of them and no longer procure any from the overflow lands of the Mississippi bottoms as we did years ago. However I am enclosing some applications blanks which you may fill out to take care of this coming May with pike fry so that the information may be available for use when the fry are available."

Already applications for crappies have been received for the stocking of South Long Lake, Lake Edward and Marquis Lake.

RADIO FLASHES CONGRATULATIONS

T. T. Blackburn today received a radiogram via New York Times from his son, Quin A. Blackburn, geologist and topographic mapper with the Byrd expedition at Little America, congratulating him on completion of fifty years faithful service with the Northern Pacific railway company, and extending best wishes to his parents. Quin says all in the expedition are well.

DRAMATIC GROUP AT AUDITORIUM

Humor, Drama and Oratory at High School Monday, Feb. 3

SEVEN CONTESTANTS ENTERED

Selections Are Interesting and Varied in Their Appeal

In anticipation of the beauty and convenience of the new auditorium, the student body has showed a greater interest in declamation and oratory than ever before. More students have turned out than in preceding years, and as a result, much new talent has been discovered. The 60 or more that came out have been eliminated in various contests until now the survivors are to appear in the final contests before the district and sub-district meets.

Under Miss Oerting's supervision, various teachers have been coaching the contestants in humor, drama and oratory. Miss Oerting has been working at all hours of the day and evening, with the assistance of the teachers in coaching and judging, has the students ready for public presentation. On Monday next, Feb. 3, the dramatic group will give their selections in the auditorium for the benefit of the public. The selections are intensely interesting and varied in their appeal, and should attract a large audience. The following people are to give their readings for the benefit of those who are interested in the work along this line: Ardelle Persson, Maycelle Workman, Marjorie Forsberg, Bernice Steinfeldt, Alyce Little, Lela Shobe, Mildred Johnson.

Admission charges are moderate. Tickets will be sold only at the door. The time is 7:45 o'clock.

GEMMELL RENAMED TO DIOCESE COUNCIL

Rev. Brandon Appointed Assistant Superintendent of Summer School at Cass Lake

ST. PAUL'S DELEGATES HOME

Gemmell Further Honored by Being Selected Delegate to Provincial Synod

Rev. and Mrs. C. M. Brandon, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Farrar, R. R. Gould, J. A. Swanson, Mrs. M. W. Richards and Miss Winnifred Small have returned from Duluth where they attended the 35th annual convention of the Episcopal diocese of Duluth.

Plans were made at the convention to reassemble in June at which time a bishop co-adjutor will be elected. It is expected this meeting will be held at Duluth.

A very interesting summer school at Cass Lake is looked forward to this year. This school will be held the latter part of June, at which Rev. Brandon will be assistant superintendent.

W. H. Gemmell of the city was re-elected to the executive council, and also was chosen to represent the diocese at the provincial synod to be held this summer at Miles City, Mont.

A record number of delegates was registered from the various parishes of the diocese as well as splendid groups of the delegates of the Women's Auxiliary.

Of special interest were the reports made by the Indian missionaries of the work being carried on among the Indians by the Episcopal church. Five Indian clergy were present. These act as missionaries among the Indians, under the supervision of the Rev. W. K. Boyle.

A mass meeting was held Tuesday evening, at which time Bishop Bennett addressed the convention on the text "Go Ye." The Indian clergy also took part in the services of the mass meeting.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Diocese of Duluth held their annual meeting at the same time. They decided to erect a cabin at the Cass Lake mission school for the use of the summer school and will also be used by the Indians when their school is erected. The Auxiliary also voted to send $50 toward the building of the national cathedral at Washington, D. C., and sent $100 to rebuild the cathedral at Aberdeen, Scotland, which was destroyed as the Seabury Memorial Fund. Mrs. George Ellis, president of the Indian

Women's Auxiliary was one of the speakers at the convention.

The convention concluded its sessions with a luncheon and tea Wednesday afternoon in St. Paul's parish house.

MILLER LAKE

A number of young folks gathered at Mrs. Elenore Anderson's home Friday evening and a very good time was reported by all.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Wunderlich are living at Borden Lake where he is employed cutting logs for George Smith.

Fred Dahlin of Chicago is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Soderlund.

Earle Borden sold a horse to Mr. Jones.

Mrs. Geo. McCauly, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wunderlich were visitors at Borden's yesterday.

Mrs. Elenore Anderson visited with Mrs. Challen and Mrs. Soderlund Monday.

Allen Varner and Earnest Anderson are expected home any day.

Mr. and Mrs. Frahm spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Onwards.

Miss Ada Wunderlich has been with Mrs. Birger Anderson's the past week.

Thanks to Bert Allen and his plow, we have good open roads this winter.

LENA GRAVELLE ROLLED 379
FOR HIGH TOTAL IN THE MATCH

The Cottage Grill is firmly encamped in top position in the Ladies' League, taking all three games from the Service News last evening. The Service News was handicapped by a blind. Lena Gravelle rolled 379 for high total in this match, and Gertrude McGarry and Lorraine Palmer tied for single game honors with 152.

By reason of a triple win over the Princess Kandy Kids, the Northern States Power team is in second place. Elinor Nolan again took bowling honors for the evening, rolling 389 for high total. Her games were 111, 138 and 140. Mrs. Swanson rolled high single count of the evening with a 157 count. She also raised her average to 119, which is high in the league. The Northern States Power broke two records, rolling high game of 811 and high total, 2211.

ROBINSON'S RETURN BRINGS TO
HEAD THE CONTROVERSY
AT BROOKLYN

New York, Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—Important developments are expected in Gotham baseball circles as a result of the return to New York of Manager Bob Shawkey of the Yankees and Wilbert Robinson, president and manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers. Robinson will return Saturday from his hunting lodge at Dover Hall, Ga., and Shawkey is due today from Miami.

Shawkey announced he would confer with Col. Jacob Ruppert and Secretary Ed Barrow at Yankees' headquarters today, but Barrow said the meeting will be Saturday.

Wilbert Robinson's return will bring to a head the controversy at Brooklyn, where rival factions are fighting for control of the club.

Stock in the club is evenly divided between Robinson-Ebbets interests and the McKeever-York clique. In event a compromise cannot be effected, it is reported that Robinson will continue to act as president and appoint himself as manager.

Judge Steve McKeever, treasurer of the club, is opposed to any compromise which will allow Robinson to remain with the club in any capacity and declares that as treasurer he will prevent Robinson from collecting his salary.

St. Paul, Jan. 31.—(U.P.)—T. J. Nolan, Minneapolis, who played the gallant and cranked a car for a young woman neighbor and suffered a broken arm, is entitled to $2,000 compensation, the supreme court ruled today. Nolan brought suit against Adleen Newfert, alleging that she negligently advanced the spark. He brought suit in Hennepin county district court and a jury gave him a verdict of $2,000. It was affirmed by the state supreme court.

Old Bibles on Exhibition

Marking the fourth centenary of the birth of Jasper Karoll, who was first to translate the Bible into Hungarian, Protestants of Transylvania gathered an exhibition of old Bibles.
The most ancient was a Karoll edition of 1592.

COTTAGE GRILL NOW HEADS THE LADIES' LEAGUE

TOOK ALL THREE GAMES FROM SERVICE NEWS LAST EVENING

LENA GRAVELLE ROLLED 379
MATCH

The Cottage Grill is firmly encamped in top position in the Ladies' League, taking all three games from the Service News last evening. The Service News was handicapped by a blind. Lena Gravelle rolled 379 for high total in this match, and Gertrude McGarry and Lorraine Palmer tied for single game honors with 152.

By reason of a triple win over the Princess Kandy Kids, the Northern States Power team is in second place. Elinor Nolan again took bowling honors for the evening, rolling 389 for high total. Her games were 111, 138 and 140. Mrs. Swanson rolled high single count of the evening with a 157 count. She also raised her average to 119, which is high in the league. The Northern States Power broke two records, rolling high game of 811 and high total, 2211.

N. Y. BASEBALL CIRCLES STIRRED OVER YANKEES

SHAWKEY CONFERRING WITH
COL. JACOB RUPPERT, THE YANKEE OWNER

ROBINSON'S RETURN BRINGS TO
HEAD THE CONTROVERSY
AT BROOKLYN

New York, Jan. 31.—(UP)—Important developments are expected in Gotham baseball circles as a result of the return to New York of Manager Bob Shawkey of the Yankees and Wilbert Robinson, president and manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers. Robinson will return Saturday from his hunting lodge at Dover Hall, Ga., and Shawkey is due today from Miami.

Shawkey announced he would confer with Col. Jacob Ruppert and Secretary Ed Barrow at Yankees' headquarters today, but Barrow said the meeting will be Saturday.

Wilbert Robinson's return will bring to a head the controversy at Brooklyn, where rival factions are fighting for control of the club.

Stock in the club is evenly divided between Robinson-Ebbets interests and the McKeever-York clique. In event a compromise cannot be effected, it is reported that Robinson will continue to act as president and appoint himself as manager.

Judge Steve McKeever, treasurer of the club, is opposed to any compromise which will allow Robinson to remain with the club in any capacity and declares that as treasurer he will prevent Robinson from collecting his salary.

CRANKED CAR, BREAKS ARM AND WINS $2,000 COMPENSATION SUIT

St. Paul, Jan. 31.—(UP)—T. J. Nolan, Minneapolis who played the gallant and cranked a car for a young woman neighbor and suffered a broken arm, is entitled to $2,000 compensation, the supreme court ruled today. Nolan brought suit against Adsean Newfert, alleging that she negligently advanced the spark. He brought suit in Hennepin county district court and a jury gave him a verdict of $2,000. It was affirmed by the state supreme court.
